LIBERTY LOAN SUBSCRIPTIONS NEARING $4,000,000,000 MARK

And the Biggest Day is Yet to Come, When Those Who Waited for the Last Minute Will Get Aboard the Band Wagon--Army Subscribes $65,000,000.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Oct. 26.—The total of the second Liberty Loan was approaching the $4,000,000,000 mark today. Reports to the treasury department at noon were so scattering, however, that it was impossible for officials to give an accurate estimate of the total subscriptions at that hour.

It became increasingly evident today that more than one billion dollars worth of bonds had been sold on Liberty Day. The biggest day of the campaign will be tomorrow, however, when treasurey officals expect to roll up consiederably more than a billion dollars in subscriptions.

Individuals and corporations who subscribed great sums to the first Liberty Loan, in many cases have bought no bonds of the second issue up to this time. They are expected to come forward with their subscriptions today and tomorrow. Saturday is pay day for the wage earner. The banks will stay open afternoon and night tomorrow to take care of the wage earners' subscriptions.

Many towns reported to the treasury department today that their allotments already had been over-subscribed. The Cleveland Federal Reserve District reported "Sixty-four out of one hundred and sixty-five counties have already subscribed their maximum quotas, some have over-subscribed their minimum quotas by as much as four per cent."

The Boston district reported subscriptions of more than six hundred and twelve million dollars today. These towns were reported as having passed their allotments: Portland, Me., Worcester, Mass., Pittsfield, Mass.; Bath, Me.; Litchfield and Stonington, and Hartford, Ct.

The Kansas City district which up until this time has been behind others of the country, reported today that its subscriptions had passed one hundred and twenty million dollars. Following are some of the state totals reported by the Kansas City officials: Nebraska, $20,000,000; Kansas, $17,000,000; Missouri, $16,000,000 Colorado, $11,000,000; Oklahoma, $11,00,000; Wyoming, $3,000,000; New Mexico, $1,000,000.

Total subscriptions from the army were estimated by the treasury today at $65,000,000. Bonds were bought by American fighting men wherever the United States troops are stationed throughout the world.

The New York Liberty Loan Committee today reported that the New York district was well past the billion mark and was now driving on to its maximum quota of one and one-half billions.

Six cities in Oregon have passed their maximum quotas and forty cities including Portland have reached their minimum quotas.

YOU HAVE WAITED LONG ENOUGH

You mean to buy a Liberty Bond. Of course you do. But you have been waiting to be asked by some particular person—Some Boy Scout that you wanted to encourage or some business man you wanted to make an impression on. And the person you were waiting for has not come around. Maybe he came when you were out and you are waiting for a second call.

Suppose he never comes? Suppose he is too busy chasing up a hundred others?

Won't you feel a little cheap over not buying that bond?

This is the last chance. Do it now. Go to any of the committeemen or to any bank and see how easy it is.

You are not asked to give anything—only to invest in the best security in the world, anything you can spare, from $1 a week up.

GOV. WHITMAN VISITS PLATTSBURG

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, Oct. 26.—Rain, wind and mud have no terrors for Governor Whitman, especially when there are sights of a military nature to be seen.

This week Governor Whitman went to Plattsburg to speak to the embryo officers in training there on the Liberty loan. He arrived at the training camp shortly after noon and the meeting was not scheduled until evening.

Despite the fact that a driving rain was falling and a forty mile gale blowing across Lake Champlain, the governor insisted upon spending the afternoon "in the trenches." This term at Plattsburg means something as miles upon miles of trenches typifying the most up-to-date methods of the western front in France have been constructed and are in use for training purposes.

Several inches of mud likewise proved no deterrent to his determination so the tour was begun. And it was no superficial one, according to an official who accompanied the governor on the tour. The governor and his escort went through the whole trench system.

The use of the dugouts was explained to Governor Whitman and he immediately expressed a desire to enter one. His wish was gratified, despite the fact that it was necessary to crawl through the mud to reach its interior.

The miniature "pill-box" fortresses used for housing machine gun "nests" likewise caught his attention and he wound up inside one of them. Entrance is gained to these "nests" by crawling on one's stomach for several feet through a narrow opening carefully "camouflaged."

The governor likewise gained a good working knowledge of the mechanisms of warfare. He inspected and fired the modern machine guns. The new trench mortar, one of the most interesting inventions of the war, was demonstrated for him. Hand grenades were at hand and they too, were employed against the imaginary "Boches" for the governor. A score of other interesting devices were encountered on the trip through the trenches and examined by the governor.

Throughout the inspection tour, the rain pelted down steadily and the cold wind chilled the members of the party to the marrow, but nevertheless, the governor declared when it was over that he had enjoyed every minute of it.

DEPOT COMPANY TO GO TO TABERNACLE

The depot company held its regular weekly drill at the armory Thursday evening and voted to attend the patriotic service at the tabernacle on Sunday afternoon in a body. All members of the company were requested to meet at the armory at 2:30 on Sunday afternoon and march to the tabernacle where seats will be reserved for them at the service.

Service at Camp Dix.

On Sunday October 28, the Rev. Philip B. Strong of Plainfield, N. Y., formerly of Kingston, will visit Camp Dix with his church choir and conduct services there. They will go by automobile and reach camp in time for the 6:45 song service. It will be both a musical and a religious help for the boys.

AUSTRO-GERMANS CROSS THE ISONZO

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Geneva, Oct. 26.—Austro-German troops, supported by batteries of big German guns, have forced a crossing of the Isonzo river south of Tolmino and are fighting their way towards the Italian frontier, according to advices from Vienna and Berlin today.

The correspondents with the German army on the Italian front claim the capture of 12,000 Italian prisoners and a great number of guns.

Austro-German artillery on the Carso Plateau, southeast of Gorizia, has become very active indicating that the Teutons are preparing to extend the zone of their offensive operations to that sector. If this is done it will mean an extension of the mighty battle to a front of about forty miles

A furious attack was delivered against the Italian position on the summit of Monte San Gabriele, at the southern edge of the Bainsizza Plateau, but it was beaten off and the Austro-Germans retired leaving the northern and eastern slopes of the mountain covered with their slain and wounded.

Rome advices state that bad weather continues all along the front, but especially in the Julian Alps where the thick fog and the heavy rain prevented Italian airmen from making observations. The protecting barrage fire that the Italians put down when the Teutons began to attack went wild and was ineffective.

In the Flitsch sector, at the northern end of the front over which the offensive began, the Germans were able to make their way into the Flitsch Basin, but violent fighting is still in progress in that sector.

Slight gains by the Austro-German forces are admitted by the Italian war office, but advices from Udine, (the chief Italian base), say that some of them were given up voluntarily to spare Italian troops from the severe German artillery fire. The fighting is approaching the counter attack stage when, it is believed, the Italians will be able to force the Germans and Austro-Hungarians from most, if not all the ground they have won.

FOURTH WARD LIBERTY LOAN

The Liberty Loan Committee of the Fourth Ward held a meeting Thursday evening, and the workers reported a successful campaign. All districts were covered and 61 subscriptions, amounting to $4,700 taken. It is requested that any person who may inadvertiently have been missed either telephone or call on S. M. Watts for any information they may require. He will then see that a representative calls without delay. The kindness of John Mayer, who gave the use of a room and furnished light and heat for the meeting, was very much appreciated by the committee.

Wants Her Freedom.

Alleging she was a minor at the time of her marriage to Raymond V. Niles of Poughkeepsie, in June, 1916, Mrs. Clara L. Niles, through her guardian, Annie E. Williams of New Paltz, has brought a proceeding to annul the marriage. The girl claims that at the time she married Niles she was 17 years old.

CHRISTIANITY AND THE LIBERTY LOAN

Co-ordination Between Plea for the Bible and the Liberty Loan, Says Judge Clearwater in Ellenville Address.

Ellenville is one of the places where leading men of all denominations, and of all parties make it a point of honor to attend important public meetings, and they were out in force at the Reformed Dutch Church in that village on Thursday evening to hear Judge Clearwater make his combined appeal for the Bible Society and for subscriptions to the Liberty loan.

C. Dwight Divine presided. The large and brilliant choir of the Dutch Church rendered patriotic hymns, the pastor of the Methodist Church read a passage of Scripture and offered prayer. Judge Clearwater, speaking of Bible work, said that there had been a marvelous development of interest in the far east among the followers of Confucius and Buddha. That while until recently converts to Christianity in India, China and Japan had mostly been of the pariah and illiterate classes, that no longer was true. That particularly in China the literati and illuminati, the representatives of the aristocracy were joining the Christian church and reading the Christian Bible. This largely had been due to the work of the American Bible Society, and to the self denial and sacrifices of American missionaries of the different denominations. He spoke of the great Christian hospital at Amoy China, and of the beneficent work accomplished there by Americans, saying it was a sad commentary upon missionary work in the far east that in the near east in the Moslem world, the man who had styled himself the twentieth century Defender of the Faith the Kaiser of Germany, had made an unholy alliance with the head of the Mohammedan world, the Sultan of Turkey, to annihilate the Christians of Armenia Often it was asked by the superficial whether after all the labors of nineteen centuries Christianity had not failed. None but the thoughtless would think this. Christianity had not failed, but humanity had failed, as so often it had failed, and often doubtless it would fail, again

He thought there was a singular coordination between a plea for the Bible and one for the Liberty Loan. The one was a plea for religious freedom and the other for civil liberty, without which religious liberty could not flourish and expand. The Bible and the soldier were closely united upon the European front, and it was in the huts of the International Young Men's Christian Association that the soldiers of the Allied nations found that solace that comfort, that kindly inspiration which tended not only to the preservation of the faith, but to the keeping up of courage. Ellenville, said the judge, always had been a progressive place, always it had ranked high in the annals of Ulster for bearing more than its full share of every burthen, and while its quota of $200,000 might seem considerable, he felt that with a hearty effort by every one it could be met.

When Judge Clearwater left Ellenville this morning he was informed that Ellenville would meet and surpass its allotment.

Aviator's Return Trip.

Caleb Bragg, government aviator, who "woke up" the Hudson Valley today by dropping Liberty Loan bombs as far north as Troy, passed over Albany on his return trip this afternoon at 2 o'clock and passed Rondout at 2:45, flying very high.

TIMELY REMARKS BY DEAN HICKEY

The Very Rev. John J. Hickey, who has kept very close touch with the international conditions, has the following very timely words to say in regard to Liberty Bonds:

The American nation has always rested its security in the deep-seated patriotism of its citizens. Its purpose has been the development of the individual through the humanizing process of education and commerce, basing its conviction of security on the principle that knowledge and profit would intensify the love of the citizens of his country.

Evidence of the reliability of this principle—so diametrically opposed to the militaristic policies of European nations—has been happily manifested in every crisis in which our young nation has been involved.

Our national strength is founded not on the number of our standing army, nor on the effectiveness of our battleships, nor on the illimitable resources of wealth upon which we can draw, but upon the solidarity of a united, nation-loving people whose love for their country is second only for their love of God.

The realizaton of our country's needs will awaken a sense of duty in the American heart that will meet any national contingency. But this critical situation has yet to be thoroughly realized. The resources of the nation have been energetically employed to acquaint its citizens of their duty in financing a struggle for the perpetuity of our sacred principles—the pulpit, the press, the platform have been the frequent avenues of communication that her patriotic sons have enthusastically utilized to spread the story of stern civic duty.

But unfortunately our people have not yet fully appreciated the tremendous fact that our nation is at war with the most powerful country on the globe, whose martial strength is capable of jeopardizing our national purposes and our personal lives.

The patriotism of many is torpified by the fact that the scene of battle is in remote Europe, whose distance from our shores encourages a false indulgence in national security. Again, too, the needs of warring nations has brought to many of our people immense gains that have made them more solicitous for their personal profit than for the security of their nation.

For many, this world war has brought no tinge of personal sorrow, but fortunes that are counted by the thousands. Our people should lead the world in its manifest of loyalty to the nation; because no other country in the world effects to accomplish for the individual the good that it purposes. Untrammelled liberty, the free field for the exercise of one's talents, the power to develop in all lines of commercial and industrial pursuits are the heritages of ancestral struggles, that makes our nation the greatest of mankind's benefactors. Millions of Germany's sons have been the beneficiaries of our nation's efforts. The hour is now at hand, when our gratitude should manifest itself in every way The stability of our nation is threatened by the most diabolical devices that a conquest seeking nation has contrived, and the providential mission of peace—through which our greatest achievements have been secured—is threatened by the determinateness of a militaristic nation.

I would that I could arouse to fervish action the patriotism of our people to the true height of our nation's needs, that the enemy that threatens our national life might be summarily and effectually overwhelmed. Were this love of country to animate all, the appeal of the nation to its citizens for funds would be promptly and generously forthcoming.

UPTOWN PEOPLE MISSED AEROPLANE

The roofs of uptown business buildings held a large crowd this morning who anticipated getting a sight of the aeroplane as it passed over Kingston. The time of its departure from Newburgh was conveyed by telephone and personally to many people who made their way to the roofs. They watched for a long time but failed to see anything of the plane. They had expected that the plane would circle the city so as to be seen from all parts of town, and were disappointed when they learned that the aviator had only passed over Rondout.

AEROPLANE BOMBED KINGSTON TODAY

Flying About 1,000 Feet High it Dropped Liberty Loan Circulars—How Easy it Would be to Destroy City Shown.

A clear illustration of how easy it would be for an enemy to destroy and wreck the city of Kingston was shown this morning when the Liberty Loan aeroplane flew over the lower section of the city at a height of about 1,000 feet while the occupant of the plane showered down hundreds of circulars advertising the second Liberty Loan drive now in progress all over the country.

The aeroplane left New York this morning and at exactly 11:10 it was seen flying about 2,000 feet high across Port Ewen and Sleightsburgh and over the Rondout creek. Curving around, it headed due north toward Albany, disappearing from view in about five minutes. The visit of the aeroplane was witnessed by thousands in the city.

It was a beautiful sight as the airship was first seen flying high over the trees that lined the Esopus shore and as it flew over the Rondout creek the drumming of its motor was clearly audible. It drew closer to the earth as it flew over the creek and was about a thousand feet high when it flew over the lower section of the city, the aviator throwing out handfuls of the circulars which lazily floated earthward. These circulars were of glazed paper and as the rays of the sun lighted on them they seemed like pieces of shining silver as they were blown hither and thither by the air currents they passed through on the way to earth.

Some of the circulars alighted on Broadway near the Stock & Cordts store and were eagerly picked up to be kept as souvenirs.

As the aeroplane was first seen it resembled nothing so much as a huge pigeon with wings outspread gliding through the air at a speed of about fifty miles an hour. Even at the height it flew the whirr of the motor was distinctly audible and even the figure of the driver could be seen. The machine appeared to be painted a gray color.

The air currents carried the circulars thrown over by the pilot some distance from the point where they were tossed overboard from the plane. If the bombs had been real instead of paper they would undoubtedly have fallen within a few feet of where they were first thrown over.

The sight of the aeroplane flying over the city will not be forgotten in some time by those who saw it.

WAR POTATOES IN NEW YORK

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Oct. 26.—New York's "war" potatoes were placed on public sale today at a maximum cost of three cents a pound.

The price is from 33 to 100 per cent lower than the public has been forced to pay since the United States entered the war. It is expected that 300 carloads will be released here soon. The price allows the retailer a profit of $1.50 a barrel.

The potato sale is but one of the many plans announced today by Arthur Williams, newly appointed food administrator of New York, in his determination to save the housewife from war prices and profiteering.

His plans include: Pledges by housewives to follow food administration rules in food conservation; two meatless and two wheatless days a week; daily announcement of "fair" retail prices of staples, thereby keeping the retailer in line; the fixing at Washington of wholesale prices for 21 basic foods; encouragement to bakers to use 30 per cent of corn in their bread instead of wheat; co-operation of the public in guarding against waste and uneconomical use of foodstuffs.

Fifteen thousand women will start out next Monday morning to enroll every housewife in New York city in the campaign for food conservation. The food administration committee plans to complete this work within one week.

At Temple Emanuel.

In accordance with proclamation of the president of the United States, services will be held at Temple Emanuel Sunday evening at 7:30.

MR. COYKENDALL RECEIVES LETTER BY AEROPLANE

First Message From the Air Ever Delivered in This City is One of Appreciation of Liberty Loan Campaign.

The aviator who flew over Kingston at about 11:15 this morning dropped a message, addressed to Edward Coykendall, chairman of the Liberty Loan Committee, from Benjamin Strong, governor of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York. The message was picked up by Mrs Jacob Myers, who delivered it to John Gitty of Pierpont Street, who in turn delivered it to Mr Coykendall. The letter read as follows:

October 23, 1917.

E. Coykendall, Esq.
Chairman Liberty Loan Committee,
Kingston, N. Y.

Dear Sir:

I take this unique opportunity of thanking you for your efforts in the Liberty Loan Campaign and of congratulating you on the splendid results obtained.

Very truly yours,
BENJ. STRONG, Jr.

This message was the first letter from New York for delivery by aeroplane to Kingston.

NEGRESSES ARRAIGNED.

Charge of Murder Preferred Against East Kingston Women.

Anna Coles and Mary Hopkins, the two colored women who were arrested at East Kingston last Sunday afternoon following the killing of Joe Taylor, a negro, were taken to East Kingston Thursday afternoon by Sheriff Shultis and arraigned before Justice of the Peace Michael DeCicco. Both women were arraigned on a charge of murder in the second degree. They asked for an adjournment in order to procure counsel and the case was adjourned until next Monday. Assistant District Attorney J. DePuy Hasbrouck appeared for The People.

Second Newburgher to be Killed.

As the result of a kick of a horse Private Frank Vredenburgh of Newburgh, died Wednesday at Fort Sheridan, Illinois, where he was a member of Battery B of the Sixteenth Field Artillery. He is the second Newburgher to lose his life in the service of his country during the present war, the first being Private George McConnell, a member of Company A, Tenth Regiment, who was killed by a B. & O. train in the south.

Albanians Buy Here.

This morning the big auto truck of Stock & Cordts, the well known Broadway furniture dealers, left this city with a load of furniture for an Albany residence. The family had come to Kingston and after looking over the stock in the big store had decided they could get better bargains in Kingston than elsewhere. This is only another instance of it pays to "Buy it in Kingston."

New and Larger Feed House With Ninety Years Behind It

Large Expenditures of Money by Wolven & Ebel in Extensive Improvements.

By The Freeman's (Once Mysterious) Mr. Fox.

With the pluck that tides over abnormal trade conditions Messrs. Wolven & Ebel, flour, feed and grain wholesalers, on O'Neil street, are spending large sums in enlargements to obtain more room, better facilities and modern labor-saving equipment.

This business was founded ninety years ago. One employe has been with it 35 years. The big Abbey storehouse built 20 years ago with these improvements gives a spacious and modern distributing warehouse with four floors, having a total floor capacity of almost 25,000 square feet.

Enclosed yard on one side with a quadrangle of storehouses where hay, straw, fertilizers, plaster paris, lath, Portland cement, brick, tile, mason's supplies, lime, prepared mortar and Union carbide may be loaded on teams, gives ample approach to a large platform.

A private branch track from the U. & D. railroad leads to a platform on the other side. An important branch of trade opened by this firm is the wholesaling in carloads of potatoes and onions.

The demand for the "Bridal Veil" and "Big Diamond" famous flours, of which this firm are the sole distributers in this part of the state, is growing fast.

The new improvements include a show room of their goods by excavating 18 inches of the cellar and putting in a concrete floor and hard finished walls; shutes to slide filled bags from any floor directly into wagons and into cars for shipment with a portable lift and shute to deliver grain in bulk from cars to bins in the building; an electric elevator to carry bags to any floor and a passenger elevator to save callers climbing the stairs.

A new one-half ton Stewart truck for light deliveries and a three ton Indiana truck for heavy loads are now put into service.

New bins are being constructed to hold from 12,000 bushels upwards of oats and corresponding bulk in other grains.

All the work for handling produce is done by means of electric power; and the warehouse is lighted by electricity. No fires are maintained to endanger the structure, which is substantially and strongly built.

An electric cleaner gives thoroughly cleaned grains and the screenings for poultry raisers to "help out" while other poultry foods are so high.

The business is centrally located and with those large expenditures of money gives Kingston the principle grainery and food supply house.—Advertisement.

HOSPITAL FOR AUTOS, RADIATORS AND LAMPS.

When something about your car gives out, you have just to drive up to the Guaranty Radiator Works, No. 7 Main street, and in nine cases out of ten they will replace or repair the injured part.

"Owners of cars in Kingston who are familiar with the work we turn out here, put every dependence on us who disappoint nobody," said Mr. Joseph Sobsey, of Sobsey & Goldfarb, the proprietors. "I guarantee the work that we do. If an auto radiator, or the tank or fender need repairs, we do them quickly and neatly. If the windshield or lamps need new lights we put them in. Many of the parts of an automobile can be restored with repairs; others need replacing. Anything that can be done without sending the car to the factory we'll do it and it will be done just right in the best manner a mechanic can do the work. Worn surfaces are made like new on old parts by plating with nickel, silver or brass.—Advertisement.

EXPERIENCE MAKES HARTSHORN FIRST

Nominee for Superintedent of the Poor Stands First Among Men Qualified By Experience for Position for Which Republicans Nominated Him.

In the performance of his official work as chairman of the board of supervisors, William S. Hartshorn has visited nearly every section of Ulster county so that he is personally known and respected by a large part of the voters of Ulster county who will support him heartily in his canvass as the Republican nominee for county superintendent of the poor.

WILLIAM S. HARTSHORN.

He is a son of Charles H. Hartshorn and Elizabeth Synder, his wife, and was born in the town of Newburgh, Orange county, May 26, 1864. In 1887 he removed to the town of Plattekill, where he has since resided and with whose interests he has been actively identified. He has been engaged in business in the town continuously since taking up his residence there with the exception of two years during which he was connected with a large wholesale house in New York city. When William H. Fowler removed from Plattekill, Mr. Hartshorn bought his general store business and conducted it for six years, since when he has been actively engaged in farming.

He has served the town of Plattekill as supervisor since 1908 and for the past four years has been chairman of the board of supervisors. For ten years he was a justice of the peace of the town. As supervisor he succeeded in having the Plattekill-Modena road and the Highland-Gardiner road, No. 350 and 351, which passes through the town of Plattekill. He has worked for the development of the farming and business interests of the county and his experience in business and his extensive knowledge of county affairs gained through his work in the board of supervisors has placed him in a position where he can be of vast service to the people of the county in the management of the county poor farm and county house. His dealings have shown him to be honest, upright and practical.

As chairman of the board of supervisors, Mr. Hartshorn has come closely in contact not only with the management of the county poorhouse but also all the various charities which are associated with the care of those who are dependent, and his knowledge of these activities on the part of county, towns, state and semi-official organizations is more extensive than that of anyone who has not personally held the office of superintendent of the poor. For some time he has been one of the directors of the Ulster County Farm Bureau, which has resulted in practical application of methods to the farms of many Ulster county farmers and which methods naturally will be continued under his management at the county poor farm.

Socially, Mr. Hartshorn is a member of Plattekill Grange, No. 923, of which he is one of the charter members, and Hudson River Lodge of Masons of Newburgh. He married Elmira Deyo, daughter of the late Clinton Deyo of New Paltz, and they have one son.

ACCORD.

Accord, Oct. 25.—The Rev. N. L. Henry will exchange pulpits with the Rev. Mr. Sipperly of Kerhonkson on Sunday, October 28.

A serious accident occurred Sunday evening when Chester Bennett, one of our most exemplary young men, started to unload his shot gun, preparatory to cleaning it. In some way the hammer slipped and the gun was discharged, sending the contents of a shell entirely through his foot, making a large and dangerous wound. Dr. Fuller was summoned and has the case in charge. The patient is doing as well as can be expected.

William Osterhoudt and sweetheart enjoyed an auto trip down the state road Sunday.

Miss Stewart, the county food conservation agent, neglected to observe enough gasoline for her trip, and in consequence was stalled near H. D. Frost's and had to phone to the Accord garage for assistance. While waiting she called on Mrs. Frost.

Monday evening the residence of Mrs. Catherine Markle was entirely destroyed by fire.

CARE OF PERISHABLES

Proper Methods of Handling, Shipping and Storing.

United States Department of Agriculture Making Effort to Decrease Great Waste of Fruits and Vegetables.

(From the United States Department of Agriculture.)

In an effort to decrease the great waste of perishable fruits and vegetables due to careless and improper handling, which subtracts hundreds of thousands of pounds of food from the country's supply each year, the bureau of markets and the bureau of plant industry of the United States department of agriculture will, as rapidly as practicable, extend the present demonstrational and investigational work with producers, shippers, carriers and warehousemen regarding proper methods of handling perishables. This work will be taken up with funds just made available in the food production bill recently enacted by congress.

Specialists declare that the successful transportation or storage of perishables is primarily dependent upon careful and proper handling methods when being prepared for shipment. If carelessly or improperly handled when harvested and packed, all care exercised thereafter to insure sound condition may be largely ineffective and result in serious loss to the producer as well as loss of foodstuffs to the consumer. Specialists in the harvesting and handling of fruits and vegetables, through demonstrational work and other practicable means in the important producing sections, will reach as many producers and shippers as possible.

These and other specialists also will advise producers in the construction and alteration of storage houses for products that can be successfully stored, especially without artificial refrigeration, and in regard to the most efficient use and management of such storage houses. Specialists declare that losses of fruits and vegetables are high in many well-constructed storage houses merely because the equipment is improperly used.

The department will seek to reduce losses of perishables still further by demonstrating to carriers and urging upon them the use of improved refrigerator cars which give uniformly greater refrigeration efficiency with marked economies as regards ice consumption and in heavier loading. Several thousand refrigerator cars have been built or rebuilt in practical conformity with the results of recent investigations and are in use on many railways. It is the hope of the department specialists that the use of uniformly better equipment may become much more general during the years when war needs make the conservation of food especially important.

MAKE DURABLE HIVE-STANDS

Tile Drain Pipes or Concrete Blocks Are Excellent—Dryness Assured and Decay Avoided.

Tile drain pipes or concrete blocks can be used to make good hive stands. Such stands are durable and keep the hives dry, thus preventing decay. As hives vary in width from 14 to 16 inches, the stands must be about 18 inches wide. Concrete blocks 2 by 6 by 18 inches can be made cheaply or drain tile of the same length bought. —Farm and Home.

Durable Hive Stand.

GIVE ATTENTION TO CALVES

Sour Milk, Irregular Feeding and Varying Temperatures Will Not Make Good Animals.

If you have spring calves you need give them attention in order to keep them growing. Sour milk, irregular feeding, and varying temperatures of the milk will not make good calves. After the calves have been changed to skim milk the temperature of the milk can gradually be reduced until cold milk is fed all the time. It had best be cold all the time than warm one feed, cold another and hot another. If a farm separator is used, of course the milk should be fed as soon as skimmed.

REASON FOR LESS CHICKENS

High Price of Grain Has Caused Many Farmers to Part With Fowls—Eggs Also Higher.

Because of the present prices of grain, there is a tendency this year on the part of poultrymen to keep fewer hens and to raise fewer chickens. The price of grain is higher now than for years. Many farmers killed off their flocks last year and many are keeping a smaller percentage than ever before. They have not stopped to consider the poultry situation seriously. While feed has gone up 60 to 70 per cent during the past year, eggs also have increased in price.

FUR CAPES ARE TO BE WORN

Will Be Very Deep and Rather Wide With a Little Vest Effect as a Novel Feature.

And now come the new fur models! According to all prognostications we are to wear fur capes in place of the fur scarfs and the cape itself is to be very deep, rather wide and to include a little vest effect as a part of its novel makeup.

The fur may be kolinsky, Hudson bay sable, mink, muskrat, moleskin or ermine. In the estimation of several of the furriers it is to be a brown season, but others declare gray furs will be in good evidence, while for those who can afford it white will be added to either the brown or the gray.

One of the new capes, for instance, is made of spotless ermine and is lined with white satin veiled with black chiffon. The cape hangs in soft folds from shoulder to several inches below the elbow and it is slashed on either side of the arm so that when the latter is in motion there is exposed the vest feature.

This last is belted to the figure, the belt being of the fur finished with a large tortoise-shell buckle. The cape has flat revers somewhat reminiscent of the directoire modes, and these are completed by a flat collar of Hudson sable, which may be turned upward to envelope the throat in case of severe weather.

No Child Too Young to Swim.

"No child is too young to be taught swimming," says Madeline Berlo. "There is no reason in the world why a child should not learn to swim before it is five years old. In fact, there is every reason why it should. The children of savage tribes in the islands of the Pacific learn even before that age. Some of them learn to swim before they learn to walk, which clearly shows that all our civilization is wrong in assuming that years and knowledge are necessary to ability to swim."

A General's Diplomacy.

A certain Russian general was suspected by his men of being only lukewarm toward the new movement, so a delegation of soldiers waited on him to ask his real opinions.

"I'll tell you just what I am," he said to them, "and you can tell it to everyone. I look upon my men as my children, and so have no reason not to tell them the whole truth. I am a Maximalist anarchist. After that I am sure you won't want any further details."

The men went away delighted. They declared to the regiment that had sent them: "The general is absolutely right. He is so tremendously revolutionary that we couldn't even remember the name that he said."

Very Durable.

The simple life may not contain quite so many thrills as the silly life, but it contains a higher degree of service and more satisfaction and usually lasts longer.—Houston Post.

The Deadly Mosquito.

Until lately it was not known whether a disease-spreading mosquito could infect more than one person. Recent experiments of the public health service of the United States government have proved that an infected malarial mosquito can infect several persons without again obtaining blood from an original source of infection, and that an infected mosquito retains her ability to infect with malaria for at least 30 days. Even if a mosquito empties her available supply of malarial parasites into one man she may infect a second man a few hours or a few days later through a new generation of parasites. This is a most important discovery, for it shows that the individual disease-laden insect is a veritable machine-gun in point of danger, and it emphasizes the necessity for stamping out the breeding places of the malarial mosquito.

STORING POTATOES.

NOT NEST EGGS, BUT POTATOES STORED FOR WINTER.

Here is a model "cottage" or room for the storage of vegetables. It is built of layers of straw or rubbish and earth, and covers the tubers safely from the frost. The model is on view at the Food Conservation Bureau in Boston, and similar "cold storage" vaults will shortly make their appearance here.

KINGSTON, N. Y., OCT. 26, 1917

Those who think that five billion dollars is a tremendous sum for the United States to raise by selling Liberty Bonds and who shrink from subscribing for their share should open their eyes and see what our neighbor Canada is doing to bring the war to a successful conclusion and re-establish civilization over the world. The Dominion has already raised a billion dollars, which, considering the comparative wealth of the two nations, is equivalent to forty billions for the United States. Canada has also sent 400,000 soldiers to the front, which is equivalent to a United States army of 5,000,000 men, only the first fifth of which we are now putting into service. It should be remembered, too, that Canada has had to face obstacles more formidable than those which have confronted us. While members of the Roman Catholic Church in this country, from Cardinal Gibbons down, have done as much or more than their neighbors in patriotic work, the Catholics of Quebec have been hostile to the raising of both men and money, for reasons which it is not important for us to consider here. Besides, German propagandists have been quite as active in the Dominion as in the United States, although along somewhat different lines. Considering everything, it is as if Canada had worked with her whole body while we have wriggled our little finger. The only thing we can do just now to "save our face" is to subscribe for more Liberty Bonds, and there is only one day more left.

THE RIGHTS OF WOMEN.

The Declaration of Independence recited the self-evident truth that men—and this term includes women—"are endowed, by their Creator, with certain inalienable rights, that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness," and that "whenever any form of government becomes destructive of these ends it is the right of the people to alter or abolish it." Further on, this immortal document made this sapient observation: "Prudence, indeed, will dictate that governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes." All this has a direct bearing on the question of woman suffrage. Manhood suffrage has been "long established," and we should not supplant it on any frivolous pretext. Nobody will contend for a moment that women have not the same opportunity as men for life and the pursuit of happiness, since it is indeed a queerly constituted woman—or man either—who can find any happiness in the irksome duty of registering and voting, unless there is some definite end to be gained thereby. There remains of the three great essentials only the question of "liberty." If it could be shown that men are oppressing women and that the latter could deliver themselves from tyranny by voting we would advocate giving them the ballot, but such is not the case. So far from being oppressed, they have given rights which men would not think of asking for themselves. We have been asked to print again a summary of the laws of this State on this subject, and it follows:

Married woman not required to contribute to support of family.

Woman may work, earn money, and spend it as she pleases.

May own real and personal property and dispose of it or sell it without her husband's knowledge or consent.

Husband cannot dispose of real estate without wife's consent.

Wife cannot be required to pay husband's bills even if contracted for support of family.

Husband must pay wife's bills whether for the family or for her own personal expenses.

If wife obtains divorce, husband must pay alimony. If husband obtains divorce even through wife's fault, she pays nothing.

Wife may have millions and cut her husband off without a cent. Husband cannot cut off wife without dower right.

If husband owns home, he cannot sell or mortgage it without wife's consent. If wife owns it, she may do as she pleases with it and without consulting him at all.

If husband fails to support wife, he may be arrested and prosecuted criminally. Wife cannot be compelled to support husband under any circumstances no matter how rich she may be, nor how poor he may become.

A father cannot by will appoint a guardian for minor children against the wishes of the mother.

All women are exempt from jury and military service.

Woman is not discriminated against by any New York State law.

Women have certainly nothing to complain of in the working of manhood suffrage. There are not even "light and transient causes" to warrant altering a system which has resulted in such tremendous advantage to women. As we have already shown, woman suffrage would cost this State in election expenses, directly and indirectly, millions of dollars, of which the share of Ulster County taxpayers would be about $40,000 a year. Let us not burden ourselves so heavily merely to gratify the whim of morbid persons who ache to drag the petticoat into politics. As a Congressmen remarked, woman suffrage is "a waning cause" anyway, as recent elections show. Let us bury the project so deeply this year that we shall never have to do the job again.

The English female "slavey" has done the boots" of prosperous man for generations, but the ambition of Boston working girls to "shine" men's shoes in public places is something new in this country, and conservatives elsewhere will not wonder that Mayor Curley is trying to nip it in the bud. "I can't imagine," he says, "any occupation more humiliating to women than the shining of the shoes of men, and the man who would permit a woman to shine his shoes is, in my opinion, altogether unworthy of being called a man." Surely the war has not caused such a shortage of men that it is anywhere necessary for women to become bootblacks.

War, Roosevelt's Fault.

The Kaiser and the Crown Prince were sipping a cordial.

"Father, who started the war?" quoth the Crown Prince, pulling on his cigarette.

"Why, we've proved it on England, France and Belgium, to say nothing of Russia," sharply answered the Kaiser.

"Yes, I know," said the Prince, "but who was really responsible?"

"Well," his father answered, "as you must know, it was like this: You remember when Roosevelt came back from Africa? I gave him a good time. I showed him all around and I took him out, and together we reviewed the army. When we got back to the palace, Teddy clapped me on the back and said: 'Bill, you can lick the world!' and, like a damned fool, I believed him."—Everybody's Magazine.

True.

In these days of the high cost of living the following story is not without a decided point:

The teacher of a primary class was trying to show the children the difference between [illegible] and man-made wonders and was finding it hard.

"What," she asked, "do you think is the most wonderful thing man ever made?"

A little girl, whose parents were obviously harrassed by the question of ways and means, replied as solemnly as the proverbial judge:

"A baby for a family."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

A Needed Rest.

"Sixty miles an hour, eh?" said the judge. "You must have been on urgent business. Where were you going in such a hurry?"

"Nowhere, your honor. I'm a man of leisure. I have no place in particular to go."

"Um. I'll give you a place to go. Sixty days."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Hand That Rocks the Boat.

The underlying philosophy of most bitter criticism is this: The hand that rocks the boat rules the world. It is not an inexcusable basis for criticism, considering the stupidity and folly of the particular world administration we have inherited, but it has the disadvantage of indicting a whole class and may just as well proceed from that irascibility which made a man a critic in the first place, as from any ordered or reasonable consideration.—New Republic.

LAKE WILL CONTEST CASE HARD FOUGHT

Will go to the Jury This Afternoon —Emerson J. Lake, Son of Testator, Trying to Break the Will.

The Lake will contest was continued in supreme court today.

In rebuttal this morning a number of witnesses were called by the proponent's attorneys

Michael Meagher who has charge of the Democratic Club, testified that testator in 1916 had played games in the Democratic Club, and seemed to be rational.

Mr. Meagher said he rode on three or four occasions in the testator's automobile, and that testator drove his own car on these occasions.

Mr. Hume Testifies.

Cornelius Hume, the president of the Kingston National Bank, testified relative to some business transactions that testator had with the bank. Mr Hume said that testator seemed to be rational.

Major Tanner Called.

Major Alfred Tanner, a G. A. R. veteran, stated that he had known testator for twenty years In 1916 testator and Major Tanner played dominoes and pinochle in the Republican Club Major Tanner said that testator told him that testator's son, Emerson frequented saloons, and would come home under the influence of liquor and would abuse the testator

Mr. Palen, the next witness, knew the testator for many years and spoke very highly of him Mr Palen was one of the jurors called for this case and was excused because of his friendship for the testator.

Calls Mr. Mathews.

Delancy N Mathews, president of the State of New York National Bank, testified to some dealings that testator had with the bank

Other Witnesses Called.

E. Johnston Nichols a G A R veteran, was the next witness Mr Nichols told of how he and testator had played pinochle at times at the Republican Club.

Mr Nichols stated that the testator told him, some time near June 1916, that he (the testator) was getting tired of the abuse of his son, Emerson, and that he had stood too much of it and was going to take another course.

Mr Nichols said the testator told him that he was going to make a will cutting off Emerson entirely.

Mr. Nichols Cross-examined.

Upon cross-examination Mr. Nichols stated that he spent a week on one occasion at the home of the testator and during this visit he helped the testator with some of the housework, including the making of the bed

At the time of this visit Mrs. Emerson Lake was not keeping house for the testator

During this visit made by Mr Nichols with the testator Mr Nichols did not see Emerson Lake (the contestant) at the testator's home.

Major Everett Called.

Major Everett, formerly commander of the G A R., was the next witness called The major's memory was poor relative to conversations which he had with testator, a year or two prior to the death of the testator.

The major stated that the testator drove his automobile in the Memorial Day parade Major Everett was not sure whether or not this was the Memorial Day parade of 1916

County Clerk Called.

Christopher K. Loughran, county clerk and clerk of the court, was called as the next witness Mr Loughran told of how the testator was called as a juror at one of the terms of the court, and reported as juror for two days but did not sit on any case.

Some Hypothetical Question.

Judge Jenkins, attorney for proponents, then asked Dr E. H Loughran a hypothetical question which for length, and yet possessing the quality of summarizing a mass of evidence as concisely as possible, was a very cleverly formed question

This question reviewed the evidence that the case has brought out, and the question concluded with "Assuming these (meaning the assumptions mentioned in the question) would in your opinion this man be sane or insane?"

Dr. Loughran answered that according to these presumptions that he would consider a man sane.

Court then adjourned until two o'clock, at which time the attorneys will sum up the case.

Invention of Doors.

Who invented the door no one knows. It is, however, an invention of comparatively modern times. All the ancient houses, even the houses containing doorways, had no doors. Fabrics or skins of animals were hung across the doorways to keep out the elements. In the great Roman Coliseum there is but one door—that is the door behind which lay the lions that ate the gladiators. From this and other similar uses it is believed that doors to houses probably first came into use as a means of defense.

The Mexican's Hat.

It appears that the Mexican sombrero is its owner's pride, and that he expends more money and greater care in the selection of his hat than any other item of his wardrobe. He may be quite poor, but he will spare no expense for his headgear. He will cheerfully lay down for the purchase of a hat he covets the savings of a long period, the fruit of much toil and all for a queer-looking sugar-loaf, wide-brimmed, heavily corded hat. Many a shabbily dressed greaser wears a $50 hat.

That's So.

A laugh doesn't weigh much—except when it's on you; and as a rule a laugh has a good temper—for sometimes it is very hard to provoke a laugh.

CHARMING DANCE FROCK

This flesh satin dance frock is lacking in trimmings, but that is made up for in a diversity of draperies and by inside panniers and the zouave bottom. The bodice is of crepe georgette with ruffles falling from the shoulders. A crushed satin girdle encircles the waist and comes to a point at the right side. The debutante this winter will enjoy her military dances in simple frocks and have as much fun and look even more lovely than her elder sister did last winter in a more elaborate gown.

SOMETHING NEW FOR BED

Correct Thing at Present Is a Bedspread and Bolster Cover to Match It.

If you are re-equipping your beds you will discover that the correct thing now is a bedspread and bolster cover to match. The bedspread is ample enough to permit of being tucked well in at the base, either tucked in at the sides or allowed to hang over the edge And the spread comes well up to the head of the bed at the top. The bolster cover is about a yard wide and its length is the same as the width of the bedspread. In the shops it is shown over a wooden bolster case but in practical use it may be spread over the bolster or pillows at night. The old task of keeping the so-called pillow shams in shape or the bother of having an ornamental bolster to use by day is eliminated in this way.

The only exception to this method of bed covering is in having a single, extra long bedspread which extends over the pillows as well as the bed. Some of the very expensive embroidered linen covers are made in one piece in this way. Attractive and inexpensive bedspreads and bolster covers are to be had in printed madrases, showing a neatly stitched braid applied to the large scalloped edges.

If one can afford to be lavish in regard to bed furnishings, there are the new basket-weave homespun blankets that are light in weight, but warm enough for the first chilly nights They are found in wide checks of unbleached wool color and green or blue or pink or yellow.

NEW TYPE OF EVENING GOWN

Idea of Veiled Decollete and Arms, Which Came From France, In Keeping With the Times.

One of the interesting phases of the war time modes is the new type of evening dress, with its veiled decollete and arms.

There is bound to be a certain social life, even in war time. It has been found best for the morale of the people to have some distraction from the sadness of war.

At the same time no one feels like decking out in full evening garb, such as has been worn the last few seasons —sleeveless and decollete to an amazing degree, says a fashion letter in the New York Herald.

France has solved the problem for us in sending us evening dresses that have a dignity and charm quite as attractive and more in keeping with these times. One of the peculiarities of these dresses is that the decollete is higher in the back than usual, and the front has more of the dinner gown effect than the usual opera or ball gowns. The sleeves are sometimes simply elbow sleeves of tulle or net sometimes long sleeves, such as were first seen last season, with slashes for the hands at about waist depth. Some of these are so long they fall to the floor.

Many of these evening gowns have no trains, but those for the opera and like occasions have sometimes panel trains.

For Stout Women.

Stout women look well with white pique or satin vests worn under their suit coats; because of the pointed vests and the touch of white the figure takes on the added slender lines.

As a rule a wide brimmed hat looks better on a woman with a full face. The wideness of the brim makes her face look smaller. But there are times when as in motoring or walking in the wind a small hat must be worn, or when the hair is not well dressed

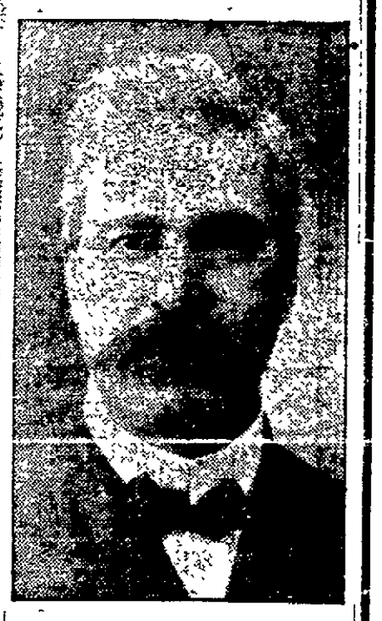
FOR SUPERVISOR OF SAUGERTIES

John D. Fratsher's Ability, Courtesy and Integrity Form a Combination Which Have Endeared Him to Men Everywhere.

John D Fratsher, who has been nominated for supervisor by the Republicans of the town of Saugerties is undoubtedly more familiar with the town's business than any other man in Saugerties. The amount of town business is not small, by any means, and is increasing year by year. To transact it properly needs the utmost care and attention.



JOHN D. FRATSHER.

Mr Fratsher has performed the duties of supervisor with credit to himself and distinction to the town During his service as supervisor, four years of which he served as chairman of the board, the town affairs have been conducted on a strictly business basis He has brought to the office the most efficient methods His experience as county clerk, during which term he instituted many improvements, including the re-indexing of deeds and mortgages, is an asset which cannot be duplicated, and his legislative experience has made him one of the recognized parliamentarians of the county. His commercial and official integrity is beyond reproach and no one has ever had anything but kind words to say of him.

It is on such a record that Saugerties relies in placing Mr. Fratsher before the voters of the town. His courtesy and willingness to oblige are proverbial, his ability and foresight have long attracted attention and admiration and his constant efforts for the welfare of town and county have endeared him to people in all sections of the county

Mr. Fratsher is a native of Saugerties and has spent his life there. Socially, he is a member of R A Snyder Hose Company of Saugerties which he served for many years as secretary Ulster Lodge, No 193, F and A M, the Saugerties Club and the Kingston Club

Social and Play a Success.

On Wednesday evening at the Clinton Avenue M. E Church the Winners' Class held their annual Hallowe'en social, there being a large attendance of Winners and their wives and friends present, considering the inclement weather In the course of the social time a two-act play was presented entitled "Aunt Deborah's First Luncheon," which was a decided success, in fact, so good was it, that it was requested they repeat the play for the benefit of the public, and after much deliberation it was decided to present it to the public on Friday evening, November 2 a small admission being charged. Anyone desiring a good laugh should see this comedy, for it is well worth seeing.

Superhonesty.

We must not look for absolute perfection in this old vale of tears, and probably all that it is reasonable to expect of an honest man is that you can trust him to tell the truth except in letters of recommendation.—Ohio State Journal.

Personal Greeting Cards, Visiting Cards, Plate Printing, Embossing

It may seem a bit early for these orders but practically all of the work must be done after the order is received and every indication points to a big season for engraved cards and stationery of all kinds. When the utmost capacity is reached there must be a stoppage of order-taking so that all work may be completed before Christmas. Trained, skillful help is required and in the rush weeks the expansion is merely one of increased labor on the part of the regular workers; and too, the engraving business has supplied its quota of men to the army and navy and to the Government Bureau of Engraving and Printing, where the Liberty Bonds, Currency, Postage Stamps and other papers of value are executed by the steel engraving process. There is also an advantage in getting more satisfactory workmanship and better transportation facilities early in the season.

This week we are having special display of advance samples of Christmas and New Year's Cards and fancy gift stationery, and it will be worth your while to stop and look at our elaborate window display and then come in and place your order. We shall be most happy to set aside whatever you may select from our stock before it is depleted and delivered the same at a later date. DO IT NOW.

LEWIS BROWN LOGICAL CHOICE

Life Long Resident of Sixth Ward Selected as Republican Candidate for Supervisor—Should Be Elected by Big Majority.

Realizing the importance of the board of supervisors and desiring that their representative should be a man worthy of respect, the Republicans of the Sixth ward have named Lewis Brown as a man who would reflect credit on the Sixth ward in the county legislature. False sympathy should play no part in the election for now in the critical period of our country's history it is best that only men of the high type of Mr. Brown be elected to public office.

LEWIS BROWN.

Mr. Brown was born and has been a resident of the Sixth ward all his life and is conversant with its needs. For fourteen years he served with the old Weber Hose Company and is now an exempt fireman. He has always taken an active interest in firemanic matters as well as civic affairs and is equipped mentally to worthily represent the old Sixth ward in the board of supervisors.

He is one of the best known residents of the Sixth ward and is honored and respected not only in his own ward but throughout the city. Mr. Brown has always taken an active interest in baseball and successfully managed the famous Red Monogram Baseball Club.

For the past few years he has conducted a confectionery store at No. 159 Hasbrouck avenue. Besides being active in firemanic matters and baseball he is an active member of the Loyal Order of Moose.

Indications point to the fact that this year the voters of the Sixth ward realize the need of a man of the type of Mr. Brown to represent them in the county government and will elect him to office by a handsome majority.

Bishops at St. James's Church.

Next Sunday morning the people of St. James's M. E. Church are to have the distinguished privilege of hearing one of the best pulpit orators in the country, Bishop Frank Bristol. Before his election as bishop, he was for years the pastor of the large and influential Metropolitan Church in Washington, D. C., of which church President McKinley was a member. He was the close personal friend as well as pastor of the martyred president. He is brilliant as lecturer and preacher, and there is no doubt that on the "Day of Prayer" appointed by the president there will be a very large congregation present. On Wednesday evening of next week Bishop Edwin Hughes, of Boston, will be the speaker at what will be a rally service for Methodists of Kingston and vicinity. The Boston bishop knows how to present the truth with eloquence and earnestness, as he is a speaker of remarkable attractivness and power. The people of Kingston, especially the Methodists, are to be congratulated on the privilege of hearing two such preachers from the Board of Bishops in one week. St. James's should be filled at both these services.

STONE RIDGE

Stone Ridge, Oct. 27.—The rummage sale and auction of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Reformed Church will be held in the Grange Hall on Wednesday afternoon and evening, October 31. All sorts of things will be for sale, such as garments, household furniture, fresh vegetables, canned goods, pie, cake, etc. Clam chowder, 15 cents; cake, 5 cents; coffee, 5 cents; sandwiches, etc. All come.

Mrs. H. J. Winchell is spending some time in Kingston.

Those having contributions for the rummage sale kindly bring them to the Grange Hall on Tuesday afternoon, October 30, so that the ladies can make, sort and mark price, etc.

Bear in mind that the Red Cross Society have a progressive euchre on Thanksgiving eve.

OLIVEREA.

Olivereа, Oct. 25.—A temperance meeting was held in the M. E. Church Tuesday evening. The Rev. Mr. Sargeant, the pastor of the church, the Rev. Mr. Bohne-Elchoit of Phoenicia and the Rev. D. N. F. Blakeney of Fleischmanns were the speakers. Shandaken was placed in the dry column two years ago and doubtless it will stay there hereafter.

Warren Johnson of Big Indian was a visitor in Olivereа Monday.

Mrs. W. S. Adams and son, Percy, and Mrs. Myron Parker have been spending the past week with relatives at Windham and Stamford.

Mrs. Eben Chase is on a visit with relatives at Hobart.

Mrs. Agnes McKillip of Hobart is a guest of Mrs. Celestia McKillip in this place.

COAL DEALERS TO REQUIRE CASH

While There is no Coal Shortage Dealers are Placed on Quota Basis and Expect to Sell on Cash Basis—Reasons Given.

While there is no coal shortage there is a scarcity of coal and the wholesale dealers have placed the retail dealers on quota basis in supplying their needs, and for that reason, as well as the fact that overhead charges have greatly increased, local retail coal dealers are contemplating selling coal on a cash basis, and giving the credit system in vogue a general overhauling.

In explaining the quota basis of supplying retail dealers with coal a prominent coal dealer said today "If last year a coal dealer sold 10,000 tons of coal he will be allotted that amount for this year's consumption provided there is as much coal produced and on the market as last year." This means that instead of the dealer getting his 10,000 tons of coal supplied him in any one month that amount will be distributed over the entire twelve months or at a rate of 800 tons per month. If there is not as much coal produced this year as last year he will get his share of coal pro rata.

According to the trade papers production of coal this year is fairly good which means that if a dealer handled 10,000 tons last year he will receive about that amount this year.

From what can be learned the local coal dealers are going to make efforts to look after their own trade first, which will make it hard for the man who shops around for his coal to get his supply. This is done so that a man who shops around can not get his cellar filled with more coal than he will use while his neighbor is at his wit's end to get enough coal to keep the house warm.

Under the new system of credits as being devised by the retail dealers it will be hard for the dead beat to secure coal unless he pays for it.

Every effort will be taken by the local coal dealers to keep the trade supplied, and with the co-operation of the public it is expected that there will be no coal shortage felt and that exorbitant prices will not be charged. It can be said to the credit of local coal dealers that in the past they have never taken advantage of a coal shortage to force or inflate the price of coal, and by their methods of handling the situation, Kingston residents have never felt the pressure of a shortage in the coal supply as there has always been enough coal to keep the trade supplied with their daily needs.

As one coal dealer said today, "With wholesale coal dealers demanding prompt payments from the retail dealers, in turn the retail dealer must secure prompt payments from his trade in order to secure coal, and in order to secure coal it is necessary to continue the coal business in the future on a cash basis."

GRANITE.

LUTHERANISM AND EDUCATION

(Contributed.)

From the beginning the Lutheran Church has been active in the work of education. The fundamental principles of the Reformation naturally led to this. Since man is justified by personal faith and the Scriptures are the only rule of faith and life, it follows that men must be educated so that they may use and apply the Scriptures.

Luther understood the necessity of education and declared that no class should be left in ignorance. The Reformers did much for the education of the people. Luther has rightly been called the father of the public school. The Lutheran Church has ever favored higher learning. Unlike the Roman Catholic Church, it encourages investigation, welcomes discoveries and favors progress in culture.

When the Lutheran Church fails to foster schools of every grade it is untrue to its principles and history. That all may come to a knowledge of the truth, has been its motto and wherever it exists a strong influence for education flourishes. Germany today is the schoolmistress of the world.

Does the Lutheran Church Today Lay Stress Upon Education?

The Lutheran Church was born in a university and it has remained true to its traditions in laying great stress upon education. It seeks to make all people intelligent in all matters, especially those pertaining to their faith and life. It requires that its ministry be educated and maintains schools, colleges and seminaries for the education of its people. History shows that in those lands where Lutheranism is most prevalent the best schools are fostered. Lutheran lands have the smallest percentage of illiteracy of any lands in the world.

Why Does the Lutheran Church Lay Such Great Stress on Education?

The Lutheran Church lays such great stress on education because it has found education to be the true means of evangelization. Instead of relying on revivals it educates its people in religious matters resting in the injunction, "Train up a child in the way in which he should go and when he is old he will not depart therefrom." No other church, in proportion to its membership, has established as many schools as the Lutheran Church in this country.

What Methods Does the Church Use in Educating Children in Religious Matters?

The Lutheran Church emphasizes home instruction. It teaches that it is the duty of parents to instruct their children in those things pertaining to their spiritual welfare.

The parochial school has been a great factor in the religious training of the church. In these schools religious instruction takes a prominent place. These schools foster a religious atmosphere and in positive training nothing has yet surpassed them.

A vast number of conservative Lutheran congregations, particularly of the Synodical Conference and the Ohio Synod, maintain a great system of parish schools conducted by trained teachers. Children are taught all the common school branches plus religion. Lutherans do not oppose the public school. On the contrary, they are supporters of the public school, because they are convinced that the best interests of the commonwealth demand an educated citizenship. But the state can give only a secular education. It cannot and must not teach religion, since church and state are separate in our land of all religions and religious freedom.

Yet education everywhere today are realizing the result of a lack of religious and moral education. President Hadley of Yale has said: "I do not believe you are going to make the right kind of a citizen by a Godless education and then adding religion afterwards. The idea is wrong. Education and religion must go hand in hand."

Thousands of Lutheran congregations maintain their own schools, in which both do go hand in hand. And all those Lutheran congregations which have not parish schools use the next best plan, catechization. The children between the ages of about 12 and 15 gather two or three times each week after public school hours and on Saturdays and the busy pastor takes time to thoroughly [illegible] them in the Bible and [illegible] instruct thus preparing them for [illegible] Catechism, and church membership [illegible] confirmation.

The blessed results of such training are incalculable. [illegible] fruits of such training that makes strong [illegible]. It is the Bible that molds strong men and women, morality and character, that plants hearts and righteousness into the [illegible] and conscience of growing children. And therefore Lutheran pastors give much time and labor to this educational work.

Reformation Week at Livingston St. Lutheran Church.

The general public is invited to attend a series of lectures to be held at the above mentioned church next week. The subjects and speakers are as follows:

Monday, 8 p. m.—The Lutheran Church in Kingston and the Hudson Valley in Colonial Days. Pastor K. Kretzmann, New York city.

Tuesday, 8 p. m.—Luther's Morals. Pastor R. Siebert, Schenectady, N. Y.

Wednesday, 8 p. m.—Jubilee Song Service. Jubilee Chorus.

Thursday, 8 p. m.—Luther and America. Pastor R. Reesmeyer, Orange, N. J.

Friday, 8 p. m.—The Lutheran Church in America—Past and Future. Pastor F. T. Schroeder.

The public is requested to watch Saturday's Freeman for a more detailed announcement.

QUARRYVILLE.

Quarryville, Oct. 25—Mrs. Helena Hornung and family are visiting friends in New York city.

Mrs. Kathryn Rightmyer of Schenectady is with her mother, Mrs. Kathryn Taylor. She is slowly improving.

Mrs. John K. Finger of Norwood, N. J., and William Rightmyer spent Sunday at John Hallenbeck's.

Our pastor, the Rev. C. Metzger, will be back from his vacation and will preach Sunday afternoon as usual at 2:30.

Robert Hummell and family of Asbury spent Sunday at Henry Hallenbeck's.

A number of our people attended service at the Blue Mountain Reformed Church last Sunday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Van Steenburgh have been elected delegates to attend the Ulster County Sunday School Convention at Kingston next week.

Victor Brant from the Catskills was in town Saturday.

Claude Post and family and David Schoonmaker and family of Saugerties called at Joshua Post's Sunday afternoon.

A special invitation is given to all to come to Sunday school November 4. This has been set apart as "Go to Sunday school Sunday." It is also World's Temperance Sunday.

Quite a crowd attended the Convery auction last Thusday and the cows and chickens brought good prices.

Mr. and Mrs. William Moon spent Sunday with friends at Kiskatom.

White Africans.

That race in Northern Africa known as the Berbers is white, and if they dressed like our own people and had the habits of Americans or Europeans they could easily pass for such. The Berbers are believed to be descendants of the white inhabitants of ancient Europe. They are Mohammedans. Blue eyes, fair hair, and rosy cheeks are quite common among them, and many of the women are strikingly handsome.

A FEW FRAPPES AND GRANITES.

Frappes are real thirst quenchers especially used to serve from the punch bowl at teas, receptions and dances. They are made of fruit juices, while the granites are another form of frappes in which the bits of fruit are used with the juice.

Tea Frappe.—Boil a cupful of sugar and two cupfuls of water for five minutes. Add a pint of strong tea infusion, freshly made and cooled, then the grated rind and juice of three oranges, the juice of two lemons and one can of grated pineapple. Freeze if desired or pack in a mold in equal parts of ice and salt for three hours. Remove from the mold and garnish with slices of lemon or crushed mint leaves dipped in powdered sugar.

Coffee Frappe.—Make the coffee of the desired strength, strain, cool and sweeten, place in a mold and pack in ice and salt. Serve garnished with whipped cream. Chocolate or cocoa may be prepared in the same manner.

Fruit Juice Frappe.—Take two cupfuls of fruit juice, one cupful of sugar and two cupfuls of water, the juice of two lemons. Cook the sugar and water for five minutes, cool and add the fruit juices. Bury in equal parts of ice and salt for three hours. If a finer texture is desired use one part of salt to two of ice and allow it to stand for five hours.

Orange and Grape Juice Frappe.—Add one cupful of sugar to two cupfuls of grape juice and one cupful of orange juice, with a fourth of a cupful of lemon juice. One cupful of cream may be added if desired. Fill the mold and pack as usual in ice and salt. Garnish with whipped cream in serving.

Cider Frappe.—To four cupfuls of sweet cider add one-half cupful of sugar and the juice of a lemon. Freeze as usual.

Granites are made using a sugar sirup, with fruit juice and one or two cupfuls of crushed or chopped fruit. To four cupfuls of ripe cherries, cut up after stoning, add two cupfuls of sugar and the juice of a lemon. Place in a mold in salt and ice five hours.

Nellie Maxwell

Buoyancy of Ice.

The specific gravity of ice is about .92. When water freezes it expands somewhat. Ice is, therefore, lighter than water, and that is why it floats. The submerged portion of a regularly formed iceberg in proportion to the visible portion is as 8.7 to 1—that is, almost nine-tenths of the iceberg is under water, and one-tenth above water.

ULSTER SATISFIED WITH MR. BRINK

Republican Nominee For Supervisor Has Given Satisfaction During His Three Terms Which Have Been Devoted to Public Welfare.

Frank M. Brink, who has been renominated by Republicans of the town of Ulster for supervisor, is a lifelong resident of the town. He was born at Lake Katrine in 1875 and is a son of the Late William H. Brink and Henrietta Osterhoudt.

After receiving his early education in the local school Mr. Brink attended Kingston Academy, and upon leaving that school began farming at Lake Katrine. He has been engaged in that business since then.

For many years Mr. Brink has been active in town affairs and has been largely instrumental in placing the town affairs on a sound business basis. First elected by a fine majority in 1911, he was re-elected in 1913 and 1915, and town affairs never were more prosperous than at the present time. His experience in the board of supervisors has been of much value to his town and to the county, and he has shown himself throughout his public career to be a man of high ideals, strict integrity and good character.

The Brink family has been intimately associated with the welfare of the town of Ulster for many years. Both of his grandfathers, the late Jacob W. Brink and the late Tunis P. Osterhoudt, were prominent in the affairs of the town and county, and he has shown himself fully capable of taking care of any contingency.

Mr. Brink in 1901 married Miss Mary Brodhead, daughter of the late Augustus Brodhead of Kingston.

ESOPUS.

Esopus, Oct. 25.—Mrs. Amy Sheeley returned from a week's visit with friends in Poughkeepsie on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Vandervoort of Highland, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Vandervoort of New York city and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Cole of Ulster Park were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Beaver on Sunday.

The Adelphia Club will be busy several evenings of this week rehearsing the plays which they are to give in Elmore Hall on Friday evening, November 2. The proceeds will be given to the Methodist Church to be used by the church treasurer, John L. Schultz, for the general expenses of the church.

The abundant rain of yesterday was joyfully received by the residents of this hamlet, many of whom had expressed pessimistic ideas of a winter with dry cisterns and low wells. But now the cause of anxiety is removed and the world seems brighter.

PRAYER SERVICE IN TABERNACLE

The churches of Kingston will unite in a great prayer service in the Delaware Avenue Tabernacle Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock in accordance with the proclamation of President Wilson designating Sunday as a day of prayer for the success of our army and navy. An exceptionally interesting program has been arranged for the occasion. The Rev. P. C. Weyant of the Trinity M. E. Church will preside and the address will be delivered by the Rev. Putnam Cady of the First Presbyterian Church who will deliver a patriotic sermon. Miss Virginia Los Kamp, contralto soloist of the Rondout Presbyterian Church, will sing "The Star Spangled Banner" and it is expected that every one who sang in the great tabernacle choir during the Peacock campaign will occupy their old seats on the platform. Every one who has a tabernacle song book is urged to bring it with them and take part in the singing. Harry P. Dodge will have charge of the choir. A free-will offering will be taken and outside of the amount necessary to cover the expense of the meeting, the proceeds will be turned over to the local Red Cross. Every one in the city is invited to attend the service that afternoon.

BEARSVILLE.

Bearsville, Oct. 25.—Miss Myra Lasher spent a few days this week with friends in Kingston.

About seventy-five guests gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Paul R. Shultis Monday evening at a "variety shower" given in honor of their daughter, Miss Beatrice Shultis. Piano and vocal selections were given by Miss Frances T. Vosburg of Shady, also other games were played by all. About midnight a dainty luncheon was served. Guests were present from Woodstock, Shady, Wittenberg and this place. Many useful presents were received, consisting of silver, glass and linen ware.

A dime social was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Shultis on Tuesday evening. Games were played and an enjoyable time was had by all present. Proceeds for the benefit of the Ladies' Aid Society of the M. E. Church of Woodstock.

MT. TREMPER.

Mt. Tremper, Oct. 25.—Mr. and Mrs. Harry B. Ecker and Miss Carol Meister motored to Hunter Thursday evening and attended lodge.

John Davidson, Sr., and the minister of Mr. Davidson's church in Williamsbridge, N. Y., are spending a few days at the Davidson cottage.

A cordial invitation is extended to all to attend the supper and volunteer concert at the hall on Saturday evening.

Mrs. Norman D. Wilber spent Saturday with relatives at Lake Hill.

SAUGERTIES ROAD OPENS SATURDAY

On Saturday the new road through the corporate limits of Saugerties, connecting the Saugerties-Kingston and Saugerties-Catskill state roads, will be open for traffic. This will be gratifying news to many automobilists, who were obliged to use the several inconvenient detours. The work has been under the supervision of Engineer Hamilton of the highway department and has the appearance of being a job well done. The contract for this work was awarded to the contracting firm of Wagner & Braun of Brooklyn, early last year, who started work in June and were busy until prevented by cold weather. Much fault was found on account of the time taken for the work and the condition of the streets, which have been more or less impassible for two summers. The contract was taken from them and completed by the department of highways, under the competent supervision of Engineers Hamilton and Reed.

The Ladies Aid held a meeting at the home of Mrs. Edwin Marchant on Wednesday night and decided to hold their fair on December 5 and 6. The following committees were elected: Chairman of the fancy booth, Mrs. Liberty Hyde, assisted by Mrs. Edwin Haines and Josephine Hotaling; supper committee, chairman, Mrs. George Dunn, Mrs. Andrew Cockfair, Mrs. Edwin Marchant; grocery booth, Edison Marchant; candy booth, by the young people.

On account of the storm on Wednesday night the lecture that was to have been given by Rev. P. C. Weyant has been postponed till next week.

Mrs. George Mead and Mrs. Joseph Snyder attended the W. C. T. U. at Port Ewen on Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Klug and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Snyder attended the wedding of Snyder and Longendyke at St. Peter's Church on Sunday.

Mrs. Harry Watts and daughters, Ruth and Mrs. Earl Schoonmaker, of Kingston spent Thursday at the home of her mother, Mrs. Thomas Crittenden.

SUCCESSFUL LOCAL THRIFT CAMPAIGN

We all, if we are worth while, learn by experience, our own or the other fellow's. While there has been no executive committee meeting of the local Red Cross held since the suggestion of the Chamber of Commerce relative to the regular stated collection and sale of waste material for the benefit of the Red Cross (the annual meeting will be next Monday evening), several concerns and private individuals have already notified the Chamber of Commerce of their willingness to co-operate in such a movement. The matter will, at the first opportunity, be taken up by the chapter officials. In the meantime here is the history of what can be done in conjunction with our home junk dealers as related by a member of a small nearby locality. A certain philantfiropy in the small village needed financing. It was agreed that the people of one of the churches should interest their members and friends in the project of selling their old magazines, papers, rags and other salable waste, the money realized therefrom to go to the needy cause. This was done, and the material was collected and sold to Barney Millens of this city, the philanthropy receiving $50 as a result.

Surely in a city the size of Kingston, where there is so much waste in factories and stores as well as in private homes, a neat sum should be realized from the monthly collection and sale of the same, if the owners of this waste are willing to make such a donation to the Red Cross. Tell the Chamber of Commerce, telephone call 404, what you think of the project.

"THE THIRTEENTH CHAIR."

Kingstonians Unable to Procure Seats When Played in New York.

Many Kingstonians were actually unable to obtain seats for the performance of "The Thirteenth Chair" during its year's run at the Forty-eighth Street Theatre, New York city, last season, and few plays that attracted attention in New York during the year were more highly commended than "The Thirteenth Chair." Tonight the play will be produced at the Kingston Opera House.

"The Thirteenth Chair" is from the pen of Bayard Veiller, the author of "Within the Law," and is one of the biggest theatrical sensations of a generation, and as a mystery play probably never was surpassed. For the benefit of theatre-goers who like to know the plot of plays, it may be stated that in "The Thirteenth Chair" twelve people, all gentle bred and possessing more than the average amount of worldly goods, gather together to spend an evening at the home of one of their members. As a rather unusual bit of entertainment the services of a well known medium are enlisted and a spiritualistic seance is to be given. In order that there may be no suggestion of trickery, the doors and windows are all locked and the thirteen people sit in a circle with their hands clasped together. Then, while the lights in the room are extinguished, one of the thirteen is murdered. Who committed the crime. Around such an extraordinary plot has been formed the most thrilling play which ever has been presented before a Kingston audience.

CARRIES UMBRELLA FOR LUCK

Postmaster General Burleson Is Never Seen Without His Disreputable Looking "Shower Stick."

The postmaster general, Mr. Burleson, always carries an umbrella. No matter when or where he goes, invariably he carries a "shower stick" with him—and it is a disreputable looking one at that. The closed umbrella has a dingy green cover and a crooked handle and bulges out at the bottom as if a peck of greens or a dressed chicken were concealed therein.

Friends of Mr. Burleson have tried repeatedly to break him of the umbrella-carrying habit, says the Louisville Courier-Journal. He scorns their appeals. Admirers have given him at least a dozen umbrellas since he became a member of the president's cabinet, hoping that he would discard the old one that is his constant companion, but he has never carried any of them, so far as has been observed. He clings to the old one, for some reason or other.

When he was asked by an inquisitive admirer why he always carried an umbrella in preference to a cane or swagger stick—now the rage among army officers in Washington—Mr. Burleson smiled and merely said:

"Oh, it's just a hobby of mine. I find this umbrella brings me good luck."

Then he changed the subject.

Toymakers in Trenches.

To spend Christmas in the trenches is a great sacrifice on the part of the French soldiers. Among these are the skillful artisans who formerly made the little cribs and mangers representing the Child Christ asleep, with Mary and Joseph bending over him, with the cattle in the stable of Bethlehem, and the golden angels floating over the stable. The soldiers may shout "Noel! Noel!" as they used to do in Paris on Christmas day. But they miss their great "revellion" or feast, their New Year's gifts, and their "Fete des Fous," which falls on the Twelfth night, or the Epiphany, when the three wise men are supposed to have reached the manger at Bethlehem.—The Christian Herald.

The Price of Freedom.

These are the times that try men's souls. The summer soldier and the sunshine patriot, will, in this crisis, shrink from the service of their country, but he that stands it now deserves the love and thanks of man and woman. Tyranny, like hell, is not easily conquered; yet we have this consolation with us, that the harder the conflict, the more glorious the triumph. What we obtain too cheaply, we esteem too lightly; it is dearness only that gives everything its value. Heaven knows how to put a proper price upon its goods; and it would be strange indeed if so celestial an article as freedom should not be highly rated.—Tom Paine's Crisis.

Fireworks Trade Hit.

The war has shut off the European trade in firecrackers and fireworks generally out of Hong-Kong, but the United States continues to take perhaps $250,000 worth of such goods out of the Hong-Kong field annually. The trade last year has been hampered by high freights, and particularly by a lack of service of sailing ships from Hong-Kong to New York. Usually there are sailing ships on the berth in Hong-Kong, for the east coast of the United States, and because of the cheap freights and other advantages they offer they almost invariably carry a large quantity of firecrackers for the American market.

TOLD IN FIGURES

Uruguay has 1,378,808 inhabitants.

Uruguay's area is 72,000 square miles.

Spain in 1916 produced 207,115 tons of olive oil.

Germans pay 86 cents a pound for horse meat.

Georgia in 1916 suppressed 687 illicit liquor distilleries.

Japan's reserve of gold specie exceeds $478,280,000.

Philadelphia local charities collections have fallen off 50 per cent this year.

Aroostook county, Maine, this year has 110,000 acres of potatoes and expects to gather 22,000,000 bushels.

An Excellent Reason.

At a little country village every man who wasn't actually bedridden joined the volunteers. One of the most hoary was told off to guard the signal box on the local railway. On this first night his officer came round and genially inquired:

"Seen anything?"

"Yes," said the hoary one. "There's summat moving over there."

"Have you challenged?"

"Aye, and he won't answer."

"Then why don't you fire?" said the surprised officer.

"Why, 'cos if I did 'e might turn round and fire at I."

Turned Down the Kaiser.

Kew Gardens is one of the show places of London which refused entrance to the kaiser on his last visit to London. He drove down there without obtaining the official sanction by which alone the gates of the garden can be opened to admit carriages. Despite the anger and annoyance expressed by his majesty, the park keeper resolutely refused to admit the royal carriage until the necessary permission had been obtained.

GIRLS WHO SMUGGLED FATHER OUT OF ALSACE TO UNITED STATES.

These two girls were instrumental in saving their father, a former Mayor of Colmar, in Alsace, from arrest if not death at the hands of the Germans. They have recently arrived in this city with their father, Daniel Blumenthal. The girls, on learning that their "dad" was to be arrested as a French sympathizer, smuggled him out of the town to a safe hiding place. They then returned to rescue a male relative, whom they dressed as a girl. All eventually reached Switzerland and safety.

FAMOUS DOG OF WAR DIES IN RED AFTER MANY BATTLES.

Nellie was wounded in the first battle of Ypres and lay for her master, a British officer. She was found by Major Osterrieth, of the Belgian Fifth Guides, and joined his service. LAWS OF NEW YORK.—By Authority.
CHAP. 662.

AN ACT to amend the highway law, in relation to compensation of the town superintendent of highways in certain towns.

Became a law May 26, 1917, with the approval of the Governor. Passed, three-fifths being present.

The People of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows:

Section 1. Chapter thirty of the laws of nineteen hundred and nine, entitled "An act relating to highways, constituting chapter twenty-five of the consolidated laws," is hereby amended by inserting therein after section forty-five a new section, to be section forty-five-a, to read as follows:

§ 45-a. Compensation of town superintendents in certain counties adjoining cities of the first class. The town board of any town in a county having a population of two hundred thousand or less, according to the last federal or state census or enumeration, adjoining a city of the first class having a population of one million and upwards, may by resolution provide that the town superintendent of highways shall receive an annual salary of not to exceed twenty-five hundred dollars in lieu of all other compensation. In a town in which such superintendent shall receive a salary as herein provided, the compensation provided for in section one hundred and seventy-five of this chapter for the services of such superintendent shall be paid to the supervisors of the town for the benefit of the town.

§ 2. This act shall take effect immediately.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.:

I have compared the preceding with the original law on file in this office, and do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom and of the whole of said original law.

Secretary of State.

LAWS OF NEW YORK.—By Authority.
CHAP. 808.

AN ACT to amend the public service commissions law, in relation to regulating the number of passengers to be carried on any street car, in certain cities.

Became a law June 9, 1917, with the approval of the Governor. Passed, three-fifths being present.

The People of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows:

Section 1. Chapter four hundred and eighty of the laws of nineteen hundred and ten, entitled "An act in relation to public service commissions, constituting chapter forty-eight of the consolidated laws," is hereby amended by inserting therein, after section fifty-one, a new section, to be section fifty-one-a, to read as follows:

§ 51-a. Power of commission to regulate the number of passengers on street cars in certain cities. The commission having jurisdiction shall, after a hearing, either on its own motion or on a complaint, have exclusive power to make an order fixing the maximum number of passengers that may be carried on any car or cars operated in any city of over four hundred and fifty thousand inhabitants upon any line or lines of street railway therein. Nothing contained in the public health law or in any other statute, either general or local, shall hereafter be construed to authorize any local board or department of health or other local authorities of a city in which the carriage of passengers shall be subject to regulation under the foregoing provisions of this section to make or enforce ordinances, rules, regulations or orders prescribing, in terms or effect, the maximum number of passengers to be carried upon any such car or cars operated therein.

§ 2. This act shall take effect immediately.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.:

I have compared the preceding with the original law on file in this office, and do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom and of the whole of said original law.

FRANCIS M. HUGO,
Secretary of State.

CHRISTMAS PACKETS FOR THE SOLDIERS

No Time Should be Lost in Preparing Christmas Remembrances for Men at Home and Abroad.

The Ulster County Chapter of the Red Cross, in answer to the appeal for Christmas packets for our men at home and abroad has all arrangements made for prompt action in preparing these packets, provided the people of the community—city and county—will assist in the work. And right here the suggestion is made that between real friends, this Christmas, there be but the exchange of Christmas greetings or a letter, and that the money usually expended for the gifts exchanged be spent in providing a Christmas for the men who are offering and giving their lives that the real Christmas spirit may continue to find a safe dwelling place in the world. In this aside it might be added that one woman is sending to her friends Thanksgiving cards, asking them to give the Christmas gift they might send her, to some soldier, as the very best gift that she could receive.

Now to continue about the Red Cross Christmas packets. While many of the men will be generously remembered by the members of their families, many more will not be so fortunate, because of economical reasons, yet the members of the Red Cross will all want to feel that all men in the camps and at the front have at least one generous and enjoyable Christmas reminder from home, and the Red Cross Christmas packet will be the way to do it. But it must be done at once in order to reach all men by Christmas.

In order that the men may be equally remembered and yet that there may be a pleasing variety in the packets, the following suggestions for preparing and assembling the parcels are offered:

Nothing should go in them which will not keep fresh from the time of packing until Christmas.

Dried fruits and other food products should be packed in small tin or wooden boxes, ¼ to ½ pound size.

Hard candy including chocolate, would probably be safe in tin foil or heavy cardboard, but no soft chocolates nor anything that could possibly be crushed should be used, as the remaining contents of the package might be spoiled.

Several dainties packed in oblong tin boxes, holding each ¼ pound, will provide a better variety for a packet than a larger quantity of a single confection.

No liquids nor articles packed in glass should be placed in the package.

For wrapping the gifts, use a [illegible] inches square and form the base of the packet by placing on the center of the handkerchief a pad of writing paper about seven by ten inches.

Select a variety of articles from the suggested list to an amount not exceeding $1.50, and arrange them on the pad of paper so that the entire package shall be the width of the pad and approximately five or six inches high.

Wrap and tie with one inch red ribbon and place a Christmas card under the bow of ribbon. A card bearing the greetings of the chapter would be desirable.

Wrap the parcel again in heavy, light brown Manila paper, tie securely with red, green or gilt cord, use Christmas labels or American flags as desired.

List for Packets.

Khaki-colored handkerchief, 27 inches square, for container.
Writing pad, about 7x10 inches
Envelopes
Pencil.
Postals.
Book (in paper cover).
Scrapbook, home made, containing a short story, some jokes, etc.
Knife, such as Boy Scouts use.
Mirror, steel
Handkerchiefs, khaki-colored.
Neckties.
Mouth organ.
Electric torch.
Compass.
Playing cards.
Mechanical puzzles (an assorted lot of twelve small mechanical puzzles can be bought at the rate of 50 cents for the twelve).
Red Cross checkerboards (a combination of set of checkerboard, checkers, chessmen and dominoes made of heavy cardboard especially for the Red Cross).
Other games.
Tobacco.
Pipe and pipe cleaners.
Cigarette papers.
Water tight match box.
Chewing gum.
Fruited, chocolate and other sweetened crackers in original packages.
Fruit cake.
Preserved ginger.
Prunes.
Figs.
Dates.
Raisins.
Hard candy.
Chocolate in tin foil.
Licorice.

Arrangements have been made by the Ulster County Chapter whereby the khaki handkerchiefs, the writing pads, preserved fruits and the chapter Christmas cards may be purchased at the lowest possible figure at Red Cross headquarters.

Now the main thing is to get these packets ready at once, so that a goodly number may be shipped with the first installment called for by November 1. Be a soldier's or sailor's Santa Claus this Christmas.

SAUGERTIES.

Saugerties, Oct. 26.—The Liberty Bond meeting in Maxwell Opera House Wednesday evening was an enthusiastic and patriotic gathering. John A. Snyder was chairman and introduced Bishop B. F. Broderick and Superintendent of Schools Edward R. Jones of Saugerties and Harry H. Flemming of Kingston, who delivered stirring addresses. The Saugerties Concert Band furnished music. The sale of Liberty Bonds is progressing, so that a family in Saugerties without one or more bonds will be hard to find.

The Local Red Cross Society recently forwarded to headquarters in Kingston the following articles: 336 knitted sponges; 108 knitted wash cloths; 12 pairs knitted bed socks; 9 pairs hospital boots; 2 knitted eye bandages; 30 pairs pajamas with coats; 24 hospital bed shirts, 5 bath robes; 10 pillow cases. Previous to this a shipment of 3,808 surgical dressings was sent to the Red Cross Supply Headquarters in New York City.

Charles McNally of Veront is visiting his parents, Mr and Mrs. George McNally of Partition street.

Dr. Wright J. Smith of Kingston was in town on Wednesday.

MISS ANNE MORGAN.

MISS ANNE MORGAN WINS WAR DECORATION FROM FRANCE.

New York, Oct. 26.—The American Fund for French Wounded, No. 20 West Twenty-third street, today has announced that Miss Anne Morgan and her co-workers, Mrs. Anne Dike, of the American Fund for French Wounded, have been decorated by the French Minister of Agriculture in recognition of their service for the people of devastated France.

The Morgan-Dike unit has been engaged in rebuilding some ruined villages of the Aisne district.

NEW PALTZ.

New Paltz, Oct. 26.—Luther Hasbrouck, postmaster of this village, has purchased a Buick car.

G. Wurts DuBois is having a first class heating system installed in his house on his farm near Libertyville. LeFefer and Denniston of this place are doing the job. This firm is also working in various other places. Some of them are as follows: Installing a good water system with engine in B. F. Malcolm's barn; a water system in the barn of Mr. Ambrus of Clintondale; the entire contract for the plumbing work in the new house of Mr. Lagatuta in Ohioville.

The Red Cross of this place are cold. That is the truth. They have asked for contributions of wood to heat the meeting rooms and only one has been received so far, that of Luther Hasbrouck. The ladies request other contributions. Come on, get generous.

Ralph LeFever has had a telephone placed in his office.

The temperance men of this section are hard at work to down the liquor. The Citizens' League held an enthusiastic meeting at the M. E. Church Monday evening and formulated plans for a big effort until Nov. 6th. They have arranged for seven "no license" meetings, as follows: Oct. 29th, Butterville, School; Oct 30th, Plutarch Chapel; Oct. 31st, Ohioville Chapel; Nov. 1st, Springtown Chapel; Nov. 2nd, Middletown school; Nov. 4th, New Paltz Opera House; Nov. 5th, New Paltz Opera House. The big drawing card of the campaign will be Frank Eugene Howard, ex-convict 11,221, who will speak at the meeting at the New Paltz Opera House on Nov. 4th.

Miss Frances Hughitt, who has been secretary to Principal Bliss of the state normal, has resigned and accepted a position under the civil service in Washington, D. C., where she will be a secretary in the war department. Our country is in great need of clerical workers in the service and anyone who has aspirations in that direction will do well to look into the matter.

Miss Sarah D. LeFever has been entertaining Miss Laura Hasbrouck.

DuBois Grimm, who recently graduated from Eastman's, has secured a position with a large steel firm in Poughkeepsie.

There was no school at the Normal on Wednesday afternoon on account of the heavy rain.

Wilfred Terpening, who was employed in the F. I. A. T. works in Poughkeepsie, was laid off a short time ago with several men and is now employed as a carpenter at Camp Merritt near Englewood, N. J.

Dr. Bliss of the Normal School is out of town doing institute work. On Thursday afternoon he was in Port Jefferson, L. I.

On Wednesday evening Dr. Kimball and former Mayor Sague of Poughkeepsie spoke on woman suffrage to a very small audience.

Hon. A. P. LeFever of this village attended the Republican Club dinner in New York Thursday evening.

EPISCOPALIANS ARE GUESTS OF BAPTISTS

Local Example of Practical Church Union at Interesting Meeting of Woman's Auxiliary of the Archdeaconry of Orange.

Little by little the live, accomplishing church organizations in the world are learning that, while there will probably never be church unity that is oneness—one church—there is now and will increasingly continue to be church union; the union in the Master's service. A local example of this lesson was seen when the women of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Archdeaconry of Orange met in this city on Thursday. In the morning service was held in the Church of the Holy Spirit, and in addition to the celebration of the Holy Communion, those present were privileged to listen to an inspiring address delivered by the Rev. Dr. E. P. Newton of Hyde Park who spent two years in Alaska. Following this service the delegates from out of town, numbering some forty women, and those from the local Episcopal Churches, repaired to the lecture room of the Wurts Street Baptist Church, where luncheon was served by the ladies of the Church of the Holy Spirit. After the luncheon, the afternoon meeting was held in the lecture room of the Baptist Church, the Church of the Holy Spirit having no parish house.

The afternoon meeting was opened by Miss Ramsdell, vice president of the Orange district who presided, who spoke briefly on some operating details of the organization. The needs of at least three institutions, two in the south and one in the middle west, for box contributions was set forth by Mrs. Hoffman Miller of Tuxedo Park, and all present wishing to take up box work were asked to communicate with Mrs. Miller for further instruction. Miss Rushmore, also of Tuxedo, presented resolutions on the deaths of Mrs. Board and Mrs. Boak, within the past year paying a splendid tribute to each of these noble women. The resolution was adopted and as a further tribute to their memory, Miss Rushmore suggested the undertaking of a scholarship in Deaconess Hargreaves' School in the Philippines, such scholarship costing $50 a year. Practically the full amount was pledged and the matter will be carried to a conclusion at a later meeting, thus providing a permanent memorial to both former members.

Miss Walker, secretary of the educational department of the diocese was the first speaker of the afternoon, and proved herself not only a very interesting speaker, but a woman of much spiritual vision. She expressed very strongly the feeling that now was the opportunity for the church, which she did not count all the bishops and the clergy but all of the people of the church to prove itself in this great world war, not alone in the material giving, which was being done by everybody, but in the giving of the things of the spirit. She told of one woman, in one of the hospitals who had, with the assistance of a very busy chaplain, prepared for confirmation some 75 men, in addition to serving their physical needs, about the biggest thing any one person could do. Speaking of her own special work she most strongly advocated the formation and attendance at mission study classes and at the big conferences such as are held at Silver Bay and other places each year. She also told of an innovation in the work which she had instituted, and which appealed to all of the women. Miss Walker called it the "Intercessory Guild," and told how this guild was made up largely of invalids and shut-ins, whose prayers were asked when classes were in session or other movement of import under way. It had proved of value to both the movement in question and to the intercessor.

The last speaker was Miss Hammond recently returned from Wusih near Shanghai, China, a former school mate of Miss Younge and of Mrs. Frederick Sarto, nee Miss Bess Winne, formerly of this city.

Miss Hammond is an enthusiast and an optimist possessed of a keen sense of humor, who just told of her life in China in a most intimate and delightful manner. She explained many of the incomprehensible things in the Chinese character as she had been able to decipher them during her four years' stay there. Her description of the people and country were refreshingly unusual and transparent. She spoke feelingly of the chance for work provided by the equipment of the compound at Wusih, really a very large city. Her account of the building of the great, beautiful church edifice and its deeply enjoyed occupation for six months, and then of its destruction by fire. This calamity, seemingly so dire, worked out a very real blessing for from the ashes there sprang an evangelical movement among the natives themselves, whereby in about a year some hundred and twenty new people had been brought under the direct influence of Christianity, while they had also given of their penury to help in the rebuilding of the church. It had brought the people together and in sympathy with the mission workers as nothing else could, and finally after this had been accomplished it was learned that the insurance had been so adjusted that the church could be fully rebuilt. This was being done and it was hoped that the new edifice could be consecrated in December of this year. Miss Hammond also gave a vivid word picture of one of the smaller revolutions which occurred just outside the compound and which was accompanied by several amusing incidents. She spoke in loving terms of the people among whom she was working and expressed the hope soon return to them. All were sorry when Miss Hammond closed her address.

Before the meeting adjourned a rising vote of thanks was given to the officers of the Wurts Street Baptist Church for the use of the lecture room for the luncheon and afternoon meeting and also to the rector and ladies of the Church of the Holy Spirit for their generous and cordial hospitality. The meeting then adjourned after the pronouncing of the benediction by the Rev. Mr. Cameron of Rosendale.

HOUSING DAIRY CATTLE

It is not necessary to build elaborately or to use the most expensive materials in order to satisfactorily house dairy cattle, in the opinion of the author of Circular No. 199, of the Illinois Experiment Station, at Urbana, Ill. "It is essential that the roof be waterproof, the sides windproof, and the stable floor durable and sanitary." An adequate means of ventilation is also an essential.

bag is placed over this hoop, and the outside hoop is placed over it, writes C. J. Lynde in Farmers Mail and Breeze. By screwing up the nut on the bolt of the outside band the bag is held firmly in place.

GOOD WORK OF INOCULATION

That Legumes Are Benefited Is Shown by Several Experiment Stations—Increases Growth.

Farmers sometimes question the advisability of inoculating legumes. That legumes are benefited by inoculation has been shown by several experiment stations. The Wisconsin, Illinois and other stations have shown that inoculation gives decidedly beneficial results.

In the first place, inoculation increases the total growth of the plant, giving greater yields of hay. In most test cases the hay crop has been increased about 20 per cent and in some cases it has been doubled. Not only is more hay produced, but the hay is richer in protein and consequently of higher feeding value, according to W. A. Albrecht of the University of Missouri college of agriculture. Cowpea hay from plants, inoculated at the Illinois station, contained 26 per cent protein while plants not treated carried but 15½ per cent of this valuable food constituent. Inoculation enables the plant to get nitrogen from the air in addition to that from the soil. This not only conserves the supply, but when the crop is turned under it increases the nitrogen content of the soil.

Inoculation, then, is beneficial because it increases the yield and improves the quality of hay and enriches the soil through the nitrogen of the air. These benefits justify the expense and trouble of inoculation.

RYE SEEDED AS COVER CROP

Planted in Cornfields It Frequently Can Be Utilized as Late Fall or Spring Pasture.

Rye seeded as a cover crop in cornfields can frequently be utilized for late fall and early spring pasture, or can be allowed to mature and be hogged down with satisfactory results.

At the last cultivation of corn, rye can be seeded at the rate of six to eight pecks per acre. It will furnish nutritious pasturage by fall in favorable seasons. In the spring the crop may be used for pasture or plowing under, or hogs may be turned into the field after the grain is ripe.

Six pigs averaging 44 pounds in weight were fed on a quarter of an acre of rye for 49 days at the Ohio experiment station. During this time they made an average daily gain of half a pound. While hogging down the rye the pigs were fed a fifth of a pound of tankage apiece daily.

Rye as a general rule cannot compete with corn for hogging down, according to specialists at the experiment station. It may be substituted economically for corn when it is difficult to harvest and thresh and when its price per pound is about the same as that of corn.

Laundering a Collar.

It is said that 23 operations are necessary in laundering a collar, but the Jamestown Optimist can't find more than eight, which are as follows: Washing in hard water, using a trace of starch, fraying the edges, ripping the buttonholes, cornmating the inner surface, putting on four fly specks, ironing slightly and then throwing into the wrong box.—Kansas City Star.

LONG STITCH IN EVIDENCE

Its Frequent Use Probably Is Due to Desire to Make Embroidering Easier for the Novice.

It is noticeable that things are being made as easy as possible for the needlewoman, and particularly for the novice. The vogue for hand embroidery still is strong and it is no doubt because of this fact that fashion has said that the single long stitch should be used more frequently than any other so that one can get the desired effect without spending too much time on the work.

One place where the long stitch is conspicuous is on the new fabric hats. A very stunning blue georgette crepe model has the crown decorated with long stitches of heavy white floss. The stitches do not bring out any particular design, instead they seem to be placed hit or miss, but the result is extremely pleasing. As for the flowers that can be brought out in the long stitch there are asters, thousand flowers, chrysanthemums, daisies and a number of other plants that will suggest themselves as you grow enthusiastic in the idea.

The vogue is for adding an individual touch to a ready-made frock or blouse. In placing the stitches do not draw them tight, and yet do not have them too loose. Strike a happy medium so that each stitch lies perfectly flat and does not pull.

SIMPLE IN LINE AND COLOR

The predominating note in this fall costume is one of simplicity in lines and in color. It is a Russian blouse walking costume of brown velours. The only trimming is the buttons, and perhaps the slash pockets may be considered a contrast to the predominating simplicity. The only relief in color is the tan broadcloth turnover on the choker collar and the tan broadcloth lining in the slash pockets.

Silk as a Necessity.

The experts are urging women to use silk instead of cotton and wool. There is bound to be a shortage in both the latter fabrics. In some places it is difficult to get woolen jersey skirts and suits. Silk stockings will replace cotton ones, for every fraction of a pound of cotton is needed by the warring countries. Wool is needed for uniforms; therefore, women will have to wear silk. What was once extravagance will now be economy and patriotism. It may be, however, that the government will forestall this by using up the silk for its airplanes.

Overworked Man Busy.

"De man dat thinks he's overworked," said Uncle Eben, "is mighty liable to be wrong. A sure enough overworked man ain' got no time fo' thinkin'."

Europe's First Artesian Well.

The first artesian well to be bored in Europe of which data are available is the tube well at Grenelle in France, which was sunk by the French government between 1834 and 1841 in the hope of obtaining a sufficient supply of water for Paris. The depth is 1,798 feet, at which level a prolific supply of water was reached, giving an overflow at the surface of 600 gallons per minute.

Worry Is Form of Fear.

Fear is one of the worst enemies of our civilization, our comfort, and moreover of our efficiency. The whole trend of modern psycho-therapeutics, Christian Science, and all such aspects of mental influence, is an attempt to overcome fear in people's minds. And the most important aspect of fear, of course, is worry. Worry is a chronic but none the less powerful form of fear.—Exchange.

Cinderella Without the Ball

By George Haskell

(Copyright, 1917, by W. G. Chapman.)

"Oh, come on Em! It's going to be a dandy party!"

The girl looking over the fence was urging another who paused a moment in the business of hanging clothes on the line to answer: "I can't Grace—but Dora is going."

"Yes, Dora's always 'going,' and you're staying—staying home, and doing the work."

"Oh, well, I'm trying to get a dress made. When it's done, I'll be 'going.'"

Emily laughed cheerfully, gave a towel a vigorous snap, and hung it on the line. She was thin and rather colorless, but her hair scintillated in the shifting sunlight and had copper and gold glints. The fence of the back yard in the village street was not too high for those who passed to look over, but Emily was not ashamed of her homely work, they were not able to hire it done, her mother had never been used to hard labor of any kind, and as for her younger sister, Dora, it was quite out of the question to think of her doing the family wash. Dora was eight years younger than Emily, very pretty, very self-willed, and very selfish. The last two traits were probably owing to the spoiling she had received from both mother and sister. Two children Emily and Dora had died, and Dora was the apple of her mother's eye. She had lived in luxury, and when the crash had come, followed soon by the death of her husband, she had taken the little that brought in a very slender income, and had settled down to live upon it with no idea of trying to increase it with any labor of her own. She was of the helpless, unthinking kind who will sometime, somewhere, have to experience a heavy jolt to awaken them to the purpose of their being here on this terrestrial globe.

When Emily was seventeen she had taken up the burden of attempting to better conditions, and make the little income go farther by doing the heavy work that a woman had been paid to do. Next she saved dressmaking bills by making her own clothes, and eventually those of her mother and sister.

"I Know You Are Worth All the Doras in Creation."

It is always the people who are willing who are allowed to carry the burdens of those who are not. There has been known, however, to be such a thing as "the last straw."

But Emily gave no indications of the last straw till a cheery voice hailed her over the fence some minutes after her girl friend had passed on. A pair of merry eyes belonging to a tanned, honest face, not especially handsome, but invitingly reliable, smiled at her under the raised hat. Emily embarrassed and rather miserable at the thought of her appearance in the old, faded working garb, could only stammer out: "Oh! Mr. Hale!"

"You'll be there tonight at the Stoner party, won't you?" he asked.

"No. I think not. But my sister's going."

"Why don't you go?" he persisted. Emily thought she even noticed a tinge of disappointment in the tone. She pushed a wet sheet along on the line to better see his face, and said:

"Well I—I can't explain just now, but I can't go."

She felt that any plea of ill health would be slightly incongruous with her vigorous handling of the week's wash. She could not tell him the real reason, and with an expression of regret Hale passed on. The wet towel hung limply in her hand, and the wind catching an unfastened sheet, it slid to the ground unnoticed by the girl. Youth, the desire for companionship, the call of the heart were all having their say. Their demand was insistent. They did not even ask why they should be denied.

Emily had met Hale only two or three times, but she had been strongly attracted to him. When her mother called from the doorway, and she saw the sheet on the ground she had suddenly a glimmering realization that he meant more to her than she had supposed.

In the cool sitting room Emily dropped down on a chair.

"I wonder if that blue voile would look well enough for me to wear tonight," she said.

Her sister Dora looked up from the novel she was reading, comfortably stretched out on a couch.

"Oh Em, that old thing!" she exclaimed in a distressed tone.

"Emily! you would disgrace the family in that dress!" chimed in the mother from her corner by the window where some stockings were receiving some desultory darning.

This aspect of the case had not before occurred to Emily, but she at once saw the force of the argument.

"I thought I might freshen it up a bit," she answered apologetically. "But if you think it looks so shabby, why I'll just let it go."

"You must get at your clothes dear, and fix up something to wear, so that you'll be ready for the next party."

Emily made no answer. She knew that the time for getting at her own wardrobe was not likely to come very soon with all the sewing for her mother and sister that was already laid out for her. She arose a trifle wearily, and went into the kitchen to prepare the meal.

Dora came home from the party flushed and excited with the "dandy time" she had had. Howard Hale had danced with her more than with any other girl; and both women saw quite plainly that something like a romance had begun under their own roof. To the elder sister the knowledge came with a chilling, benumbing weight. She tried to set it aside, and be glad of the other's happiness, but her own heart cried out in revolt. She saw before her a battle to be fought to gain the victory of renunciation.

After Hale's first call at which etiquette required the presence of the family, Emily invariably left the field clear for her sister, who had intimated that she wished this. Emily was finding the battle with herself an unusually hard one. The more deeply she found she loved this man, the more strongly came the temptation to revolt; but her mother was so pleased, and her sister so happy how could she reveal her feelings. Besides Hale evidently loved her sister, and had not even thought of her, so she hid all evidences of the struggle under a quiet exterior.

One evening Hale came when Dora was out, as she had not expected him. Emily met him with the information. After a few minutes talk he said:

"Will you answer me frankly, truthfully one thing?"

In surprise she agreed to his request.

"Why do you always fly from me as though I were a pestilence?" he asked.

"Why—why, you come to see my sister—"

"No. I don't," he broke in. "I come to see you! Don't you think I know you are worth all the Doras in creation. You're courageous, unselfish little woman!"

At this Emily quite broke down, sobbing out something rather unintelligible. But holding her close against his heart, he seemed to understand.

JUST WHAT CREATES ECHO

Under Proper Conditions Any Kind of a Sound Wave Will Be Effectively Reproduced.

An echo is caused when the waves of air which you create when you shout are thrown back again when they are stopped by something they encounter and are turned back without changing their shape. Any kind of a sound wave will make an echo in this way.

You see, you can have no sound of any kind without sound waves. You could not make a sound if there were no air. Now, when you shout, you start a series of sound waves that go out from you in every direction and they spread away from you in circles just like the rings or ripple that are caused when you drop a stone into a pool of water. You can prove this to yourself easily by having one, two, three or more of your friends stand around you in a large circle. You can place them as far away from you as your shout can be heard if you wish. When you shout, each of your friends will hear the shout at the same time, provided, of course, they are at equal distance from you.

Sometimes these sound waves as they go away from you in circles strike objects that turn the waves back unbroken just as they came to them. The waves will bounce back just like a rubber ball from a wall against which it has been thrown and this is the echo. However, some things that the sound waves strike break up these waves entirely and others partially.

No doubt you have sometimes noticed when you shout you hear a distinct echo and that at other times, standing in the same place, you cannot hear any echo, although you shout in the same way. This is explained by the fact that at times conditions of the air are such that no echo is produced while at other times a perfect echo results.—Book of Wonders.

No Time for Debate.

Alfred—Please don't put me off any longer, Mary. Will you marry me?

Mary—Alfred. I hardly know whether I love you well enough or not. Besides——

Alfred (looking at his watch)—Mary, the last train is due in just three minutes. Yes or——

Mary—Yes, Alfred.

Cause of Much Grief.

"What are your qualifications?" "I'm an expert egg cook, mum." "How absurd! Why, anybody can cook eggs." "No, indeed, mum. You're making a mistake that's been the cause of a lot of unhappiness in this world."

GOOD ATTENTION TO HORSES

Animal Readily Responds to Real Horsemanship—Supply Cool, Fresh Air and Sunlight.

The necessity for efficiency in horse power calls for the proper care of the farm work horse, especially during the summer months.

The horse readily responds to real horsemanship. The right kind of horsemanship includes a comfortable stable, good grooming, kindness, attention to the teeth and feet and proper feed.

Some of the best cared-for horses are found in an inconspicuous stable. The horse appreciates a comfortable stall. A desirable horse stable has plenty of windows to admit cool, fresh air and sunlight.

Sardines and Herrings.

Enormous quantities of very young herrings are caught in seines along the Maine coast. These are packed in cottonseed oil and sold as "sardines," which is exactly on a par with selling chopped veal under the name of chicken. The true sardines are caught on the coasts of France, Spain and Italy and are packed in olive oil.

BUCKWHEAT CAKES AND COUNTRY SAUSAGE

are time honored breakfast dishes, and there are none better or more tasty, provided. Our sausage is the real thing—made from corn fed country pork, properly seasoned. Such sausages cannot be had everywhere nowadays, but it can always be procured at Green's Meat Market, whose high reputation for every kind of pork product, fresh meats and poultry is always sustained by their super excellent quality.

FOOTBALL GAME ON SATURDAY

Kingston High School Eleven Plays Poughkeepsie at 3 O'clock and a Large Attendance is Expected.

Tomorrow afternoon promptly at 3 o'clock there will start another fierce struggle for a victory from Poughkeepsie by the Kingston boys Ever since their defeat two weeks ago the boys have been working as they never worked before and if they lose tomorrow it will not be through lack of practice or work, but because they simply couldn't win. Generally when a team comes from Poughkeepsie they bring along with them a crowd of "rooters." Are the citizens of Kingston so unpatriotic as to stay home and hear from a distance the shouts of this noisy crowd, or will they come forth a thousand strong and completely drown these lusty shouters? Tomorrow only will tell. Admission, 25 cents.

Thursday morning's assembly was given to the advertising of Saturday's game. Short talks were given by Connelly, Guttridge and Palen Miss Helen Wood then led the girls in singing, the following songs which were composed by some of the High School girls. The first is sung to the tune of "There's a little bit of bad in every good little girl," and the second to the tune of "The bells are ringing for me and my gal."

No. 1.

There's a little bit of bad
In every team that we know.
But ours is good!
K. H. S. is always at the top.
She's got the pep and pop.
Just stand by our own school boys
She'll gain the victories, boys.
So let's stand again and cheer
For Kingston High, our team and school.

No. 2.

The boys are playing for K. H. S.
The girls are cheering for K. H. S.
Yes, you bet we'll beat them.
And we never cheat them.
That's the reason we're cheering
For Kingston High.
The girls are cheering.
They always do.
They'll stand by the fellows
Whatever they do.
So cheer again, now girls
They need it so.
Our boys, our team, our school,
For Kingston, for Kingston High.

Although a trifle crude, these songs show what the students of the high school can really do it occasion necessitates. The large number of guests that morning could not help but congratulate themselves on their luck in visiting the assembly when such gay festivities were being held.

BULEY INJURED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Alfred W Buley, who has charge of the physical training in the public schools, is confined to his home on Lindsley avenue from injuries received this afternoon when he was hurled through the windshield of a taxi on Delaware avenue, near Broadway. Mr. Buley was in the taxi and a Hudson touring car in turning out to pass a wagon got on the left hand side of the road and struck the taxi. Mr Buley was picked up unconscious and carried into the office of Dr Mambert, where he was treated and later removed to his home.

LOCAL DEATH RECORD.

Recent Deaths and Funerals of Persons in This Vicinity.

Elizabeth, widow of John Rice, died at her home in Milton on Wednesday.

Letty A., widow of Charles Duryea, died Wednesday at the home of her daughter, Mrs D. D. Cranston in Middletown in their 87th year. She is survived by two daughters, Mary, wife of W. N. Holl, and Jennie, wife of Dill Cranston, both of Middletown, and one son, Virgil Y. Duryea of Kingston, and six grandchildren. Also one sister, Mrs. M. H. Campbell.

Charles Brown died Thursday evening at his home, No. 63 Henry street. He was a son of the late Dr. John P. Brown and was employed on the West Shore railroad as a trainman. He was a member of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and of Franklin Lodge, No. 37, Knights of Pythias. He is survived by his wife and three children, Charles V., Mary and Caroline Brown. The funeral and interment will be private. Friends wishing to view the remains may do so on Saturday evening between seven and nine o'clock at his late residence, No. 63 Henry street.

Abel B Ellsworth, a well-known resident of the lower section of the city, died Thursday evening at his home on Hanratty street in his 64th year. Mr. Ellsworth was of old Colonial stock, being a member of the Ellsworth family who have resided in the vicinity of old Hurley for over two hundred years. For many years Mr. Ellsworth was employed as a flagman at the railroad crossing of the U. & D. railroad. Besides his wife, who was Margaret T. Joyce, he is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Joseph Weber, and one son, John J. Ellsworth, both of this city. The funeral will be held from the late residence, 33 Hanratty street, Saturday morning at 8:30 o'clock and from St. Mary's Church at 9 o'clock with interment in St. Mary's cemetery.

George M. Zellmer, long a valued employe of The Freeman, died this morning at his home, No. 21 Spring street after an illness lasting several weeks. Mr. Zellmer was one of the few remaining of the old type of printers who had learned the trade in all its branches, before the present day specializing, and who combined with rare mechanical skill a command of language and a fluency in writing that was of an exceptionally high order. During the greater part of the past 39 years Mr. Zellmer had been connected with The Freeman for the greater part of the time in various capacities. Over 25 years ago he for a short time represented the Albany Telegram in Kingston and at a later period he was connected with the L. B. Van Wagenen Company as advertising man for a time. His flow of ideas and words made him an advertisement writer, whose services were in great demand and during the past 20 years thousands of bright, catchy advertisements printed in the newspapers of Ulster county were the product of his mind and pen. His mechanical training gave him the power to visualize an advertisement as it would appear in type, while he was writing it, and this added greatly to the quality of his work. Mr. Zellmer was a man of genial disposition, widely acquainted among business men and at one time was chancellor commander of Ulster Lodge, K. of P., and at various times connected with other social organizations. Besides his widow he is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Edwin Gregory, and the Misses Margaret and Susan Zellmer, and one son, Harry, two sisters, Mrs. Elizabeth Kuehn and Mrs. Conrad Schuler, and three half brothers, Julius and John Zellmer and Fred Stetzel. The funeral will be held from his late residence Monday morning at 9 o'clock and at 9:30 o'clock from St. Peter's Church.

ORPHEUM THEATER

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Oct. 26—Strength in the Marine shares again featured a dull market at the opening of the stock market today. Marine Pfd. advanced 2⅛ to 91⅞ and the Common rose ¾ to 27⅝. Atlantic Gulf gained 1 point to 105. U. S. Steel advanced ⅛ to 104 6-8 and Bethlehem Steel B rose to 84¼. Baldwin was weak, declining ¾ to 59½. The rails continued under pressure, Canadian Pacific falling 2 points to 142. Fractional losses were sustained in St. Paul, Union Pacific and Delaware and Hudson. Utah Copper was the weakest of the copper group, declining ⅝ to 79¾. The other copper shares held steady. Tobacco Products advanced one point to 55½. Central Leather declined 1¼ to 79⅜.

STOX—TWO ....

Declines in the arly trading were followed by moderate rallies. Some of the stocks on the decline touched new low figures for many years. Canadian Pacific sold down to 142, followed by a rally to 143¾. Union Pacific touched 117¼, from which it rose over one point. Marine Pfd., after moving up over three points to 92⅞ reacted to 91½ while Atlantic Gulf yielded to 103¾. There was an increased demand for the copper issues, Utah gaining 2 points to 81⅜. The steel stocks after slight recession became strong. U. S. Steel Common rallied one point to 101⅞ and fractional upturns were made in the other steel issues. Money loaning at 3¾ per cent.

The most active feature of the trading during the afternoon was the heaviness in a number of investment issues. General Electric sold down five points to 131½, while American Telephone was subjected to pressure, declining 1¾ to 112½. Atlantic Gulf sold down to 100½, a loss of over 5 points, while Marine Preferred sold as low as 91. The steel stocks held within comparatively narrow limits but were about a point below the midday prices. General Motors was weak, selling as low as 91½, a loss of nearly four points from its high of the morning.

The market closed irregular. Government bonds unchanged; railway and other bonds weak.

Reel Felt Relieved.

Captain C. Gordon Reel, now in the aviation department of the United States army, had a thrilling experience Wednesday when the aviator with whom he was riding at an altitude of 4,000 feet deliberately let the machine fall 1,000 feet for the purpose of testing the captain's ability to stand the vicissitudes of an aviator's life. When the machine had dropped far enough to suit the operater he "caught on" and came up again, much to the relief of Captain Reel

Grange Gives Minstrels Tonight.

Asbury Grange will give a minstrel performance and dance at Lake Katrine Grange Hall this evening, one-half the proceeds of which will be used by the Grange in adding to the fund already under way for building a Grange Hall. The minstrel performance will contain many excellent musical selections and specialties, with local hits. Refreshments will be served during the evening and dancing will follow.

Revival Meeting.

The Franklin Street A. M. E. Zion Church will hold a ten days' revival meeting, beginning Monday night, the 29th of October. The Rev. I. T. Conquest the singing evangelist of Danbury, Conn., will have charge of the meetings. The public is cordially invited to attend these meetings.

"PASS UP" $500,000

Amount Yale, Princeton and Harvard Toss to Discard.

Big Sum of Money Big Colleges Could Coax From Sporting Public's Bottomless Pocket Will Be Left Untouched.

Half a million dollars which has annually been spent for the last three years by spectators at the football games of Harvard, Yale and Princeton will be saved or diverted elsewhere this year. The withdrawal of the Big Three from 'varsity football for the 1917 season will leave this large sum in circulation.

The sad part of the circumstance is that the $500,000 is ready to be exchanged for football tickets again this fall, but the three universities have decided that it ought not to cheat the sporting public by putting on inferior teams, and not a cent of the money will come into the athletic treasuries as a result.

Harvard, Yale and Princeton can afford to pass up its annual taking of football receipts this season better than most of the other colleges, but nevertheless these three big fellows could find plenty of uses for the money. Fixed charges are still going on in Cambridge, New Haven and Princeton, N. J., and in the absence of 'varsity football, such charges will amount to a loss. Office salaries still continue, and the usual expense for the upkeep of the football plants must be met. Money to meet these normal expenses must come out of the athletic treasury, for it is the law that sports must be kept as a separate item and not encroach on the academic appropriations.

When the war is over and athletics is resumed, it is certain that Harvard, Yale and Princeton, in common with most of the other colleges of the country, will face deficits in the athletic departments. In the case of the Big Three, however, it will probably not take more than a single football season to balance the ledgers. Football is always the best paying sport, and can be depended on to make more than its heavy expenses. In a few years immediately following the war, however, it is probable that some of the other sports will have to be handled more economically than they previously were. Crew racing, for instance, rolls up a heavy expense and returns but little in receipts. The same thing goes for track athletics. In the reconstruction period it is probable that football can pay for itself and make up for the deficit caused by the unprofitable war years, but there will not be much money left over to pay for the big losses rung up by the nonpaying sports. For that reason, economy will still have to be practiced after all departments of sports are once more operating on a normal basis.

BRICKLEY TO COACH BOSTON

Former Harvard Star Half-Back Expected to Boom Athletics—Will Have Assistance.

Working with Brickley will be a special subcommittee of the graduate board, consisting of Rev. R. A. O'Brien, S. J.; Thomas D. Lavelle, R. S. Teeling and Francis R. Mullin.

Plans for the erection of an athletic dormitory are in mind, and the faculty has been consulted on this special feature. Dr. "Archie" White, one of the old gold-and-maroon athletes of years gone by, and Dr. John A. O'Brien have been appointed medical advisers to the football squad.

Governors Have Pardoning Power.

The governors of nearly all the states have power to grant pardons and reprieves. A pardon remits all punishment imposed for a crime while a reprieve merely suspends execution of sentence for a specified time.

Big Fire in Cleveland.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Cleveland, O., Oct. 26.—Fire, which started in the R. B. Traker Clothing store at 10 o'clock last night is still raging, having spread to adjoining buildings despite the efforts of the entire fire fighting forces of the city. The fire has tied up the heart of the retail district on Euclid avenue. Thousands of workers have been barred from the big office buildings and electric current for blocks is shut off.

CULLING AS CHICKENS GROW

Special Tag Band Should Be Put on Particularly Promising Specimen—Note Its Development.

It is a good plan to cull the flock as the chickens grow. When a particularly promising specimen is noted, that is full of life and vigor and growing all the time, a special leg band may be put upon it and note taken of its development. Successful poultrymen know their best breeders from chickenhood to maturity.

VALUABLE AS A FERTILIZER

Where Leached by Rains or Otherwise Value Is Practically Nothing—Hardwood Best.

Ashes from soft woods only are of little value as compared with hardwood ashes and doubtless are of less value than ashes from trash piles or garden accumulations of weeds, etc. When soft ashes have been leached by rains or otherwise their market value is practically nothing.

BLANCHING ENDIVE IS EASY

When Leaves Are Dry Bring Up and Tie Together—Untie After Rain to Let Them Dry.

(By LE ROY CADY, Associate Horticulturist, University Farm, St. Paul.)

Endive may be blanched by bringing the leaves up together and tying. This must be done when the leaves are dry. It is a good plan to untie the leaves after every rain and let them dry out, otherwise they may decay.

Experimenting.

On entering Milliken's room one day his friend Pingley found him thumping the piano with all his might and drawing the most discordant noise from the instrument. "What in the name of all that is good are you playing?" asked Pingley. "I am trying to play that score of Wagner's," replied Milliken. "But the score is upside down," said Pingley. "That's true," said Milliken. "I had it the other way up at first, but couldn't make head or tail of it, so I thought I might succeed in this way."

WIRE SPLICER EASILY MADE

Neat and Strong Device Can Be Made With Little Instrument Shown in Illustration.

The neatest and strongest wire splicer can be made with this little instrument, says a Minnesota writer in The Farmer. Take a strip of iron one inch wide and one-eighth inch thick. Cut one end narrow and bend into a hook large enough to fit neatly the largest wire to be spliced. At the sides of the hook two notches are filed. Turn splicer backward to make the splice. Use a pair of large pincers to hold the wires.

A Wire Splicer.

GIVE TURKEYS BEST OF CARE

Provide Place Where Fowls Can Roost by Themselves and Don't Overfeed—Keep Off Lice.

Don't overfeed the turkeys, and always have a place where they can roost by themselves. If kept with chickens, they soon become lousy. It does not take many lice to kill a young turkey. The best way to keep poults from getting lousy is to keep the old ones free from lice and then hatch the eggs under the turkey hens. When hatched under chicken hens they are almost sure to have the large body lice. They acquire these in spite of all efforts to prevent.

Then It Becomes Clear.

"We often wonder," remarks an exchange, "how many folks make a living until we have a bill against them."—Boston Transcript.

HEALTHY CHICKS GROW FAST

Keep Coops and Houses Clean and Sanitary to Prevent Disease—Get Rid of Vermin.

Every effort must be made to keep the coops and houses of little chicks clean and sanitary. Disease most frequently starts in unclean, poorly ventilated houses. Clean the house at least once a week. Sand or litter of some kind scattered over the floor of the house will assist in keeping it clean. When chicks are confined to a limited range, it is well to spade up the ground at frequent intervals, so as to provide fresh ground for them to scratch in. If lice are found, every effort must be made to get rid of them, by applying a small portion of a mixture of equal parts of vaseline and lard to the top of the head and around the vent. Sickly chicks can't grow fast enough to make money; healthy chicks can and will. Keep 'em well!

LIGHT HORSESHOE IS IDEAL

Keeps Foot Level and Takes Greater Pressure From Toe—Owner Thus Lessens Grain Bill.

The ideal horseshoe is one which is light, consistent with a month's wear. This will keep the foot level instead—as is the case with a heavy shoe and heels—of putting the greater pressure on the toe. Very careful examination and calculation has proved that if a four-pound shoe is used—as is sometimes the case on heavy horses—a horse, in an ordinary day's work lifts 52 tons on each foot, or 208 tons in all more than is necessary. This, of course, involves a needless expenditure of muscular energy, and more feed is needed to keep the animal in proper condition. With a lighter shoe the owner would not only relieve the horse, but lessen his grain bill.

When the Tide Turns.

When you get into a tight place, and everything goes against you, till it seems as if you couldn't hold on a minute longer, never give up then, for it is just the place and time the tide will turn.—Harriet Beecher Stowe.

SOCIETY NOTES.

Mrs. Charles Appleton Warren will be the hostess at the Twaalfskill Club on Saturday afternoon.

Kirby-Shaw.

Miss Marie K. Shaw and Walter R. Kirby, both of Blakely, Pa., were united in marriage Thursday at the parsonage of the Church of the Comforter by the Rev. W. F. Stowe. They were attended by Mr. and Mrs. John H. Hudler of this city. Mr. and Mrs. Kirby will reside in Blakely.

Shower at Schenectady.

Kingstonians will be interested in the announcement made in Schenectady newspapers of a pre-nuptial shower at the home of Mrs. George Dagenhart, No. 720 Broadway, Schenectady, several nights ago when Miss Golda Winfield was tendered a variety shower by Mrs. L. V. Williams and Mrs. George Dagenhart in honor of her approaching marriage to Edward Lasher of Schenectady. The rooms were beautifully decorated and the favors were American Beauty roses. During the evening entertainment was provided and musical numbers were contributed by Mrs. Edgar Williams, Mrs. L. V. Williams and Miss Hazel Winfield. At a late hour a repast was served to the guests. The bride-to-be was the recipient of many beautiful and useful gifts. Among those present were Mrs. H. Earls, Mrs. M. Snyder, Mrs. E. Bratt, Mrs. E. Williams, Mrs. W. Rutter, Mrs. C. Clark, Mrs. G. Bratt, Mrs. H. Shultis, Mrs. C. Winfield, Mrs. J. Bond, Mrs. D. Sutton, Mrs. L. Williams, Mrs. George Dagenhart, Miss G. Winfield, Miss E. Myers, Miss E. Snow, Miss H. Winfield and Miss M. Williams.

The Symphony Benefit.

The letter of Judge Clearwater to Emanuel Metzger, chairman of the Symphony Benefit Concert Committee, published in The Freeman last evening, shows that the efforts of our home orchestra in the cause of musical education and the general artistic uplift of this community are being appreciated by the leading citizens of Kingston. Secretary William Davis Hawk reports a very generous response to the circular letter sent out by the committee.

The existence of much latent musical talent in this city and county, referred to by Judge Clearwater, is a well known fact. This was fully demonstrated by the phenomenal success of the Kingston Philharmonic Society some years ago, under the presidency of the late S. D. Coykendall, who did so much to foster and develop the musical art in this vicinity. Since then, however, very little has been done in this line, although much credit is due to the efforts of our local Symphony Society in reviving the former interest in musical affairs. And now under the reorganization of this society it is pleasing to record the recognition and support it is receiving by our prominent and influential citizenship.

Former Kingstonians Celebrate Anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Erwin Mould, formerly of Kingston, celebrated their silver wedding anniversary today at their home at Rochester, N. Y., where Mr. Mould is connected with the New York Telephone Company. They were married in this city on October 26, 1892, by the late Rev. F. S. Barnum. Mr. Mould at that time was employed by the Ulster & Delaware Railroad Company at the Cornell street freight office. Afterwards he was station agent at Roxbury and later went with the New York Telephone Company. During part of his residence in Kingston he was a member of the old Fourteenth Separate Company and during the absence of the company from Kingston he was commissioned first lieutenant of the One Hundred and Fourteenth Separate Company. Mrs. Mould before her marriage was Miss Bertha Merritt of this city. On October 16, Mr. Mould's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Mould, of Lafayette avenue, celebrated their fiftieth anniversary. Mr. and Mrs. Mould of Rochester were the recipients of the best wishes of their many Kingston friends. Their daughter was with them in the celebration of the anniversary.

THE JADE FROG

By ISABEL FROST.

Diggs had not noticed it at first, although he stood nearer to it than anyone else in the room. He was so interested in renewing his acquaintance with Leonie Verney that all inanimate objects escaped his kin.

He had only seen her once before—at Haskell's studio, around Christmas time. But she was a girl then. Slender, corsetless with a graceful, curving body. Haskell had told him briefly of Miss Verney's career, and it had interested him immensely.

Her father was a Chinese missionary at Hangkow. He was killed during the Boxer uprising. Leonie was disguised as a Chinese child by her Christian nurse and hidden away in an old temple in the interior until the trouble was over. It was not until two years ago that she came to America.

Diggs was telling her of the Roman seats which he had just sent out to his garden at Greenwich, when suddenly he caught her looking past him intently at something on the mantelpiece. Glancing around, he saw the little jade frog. It was about two and a half inches long, and quite as wide, a puffy, arrogant frog, utterly unnatural and grotesque.

"What is it?" he asked, seeing that the girl really looked pale.

"I don't know exactly," she answered in a low voice. "It is all too strange and horrible. I wonder whom that frog belongs to."

"I'll ask Haskell," he said.

Haskell shook his head doubtfully when Diggs found him.

"You've got me, old man. I sublet these rooms when I got back from France, and that thing was here. It's Chinese, isn't it? There are some wonderful embroideries in that pearl inlaid cabinet in the corner. They probably all belong to Doctor Yoy, the former tenant."

He carried the information he had gleaned back to Leonie. She said little, but asked him to call a taxi for her, as she was leaving early.

"I can't explain tonight," she said, as they parted. "Come tomorrow at eleven and I'll tell you all I know."

The morning mail brought a brief letter from Haskell.

"Wire from Doctor Yoy announces arrival in Frisco Monday. He requests me to place the little jade frog in a safety deposit vault without telling anyone. Thought I'd let you know."

Diggs called him up on the telephone, asking him to wait until a copy of the inscription could be secured; then he got in touch over the wire with a certain civil engineer friend and college classmate who had spent some time in China. Wallace was perfectly willing to help him out, and though it made him a little late for his appointment with Leonie, he took the time to carry the frog down to Wallace's office. After about an hour's study the latter gave him the translation. It ran:

"Who so seeketh vengeance on his enemies shall ask the crystal ball for aid. Spirit of the sacred Hu Fwa, graciously list to the curses upon the foreign devils."

He carried the news to Leonie at once. She leaned forward eagerly, her hands tightly clasped.

"Oh, I was sure of it, last night," she said. "Mr. Diggs, you must help me. I know this doctor. He was a false friend of my father's. It was he who bore witness against him, and betrayed him into the hands of the Boxers. He has had me watched ever since I left China, but I never dreamed that the jade frog was in his possession."

He took the frog out of his pocket and set it on the table in front of them. Leonie leaned forward and looked at the little crystal ball. As she reached for it, her hand was unsteady, and it fell from her clasp to the floor with a crash. She gave a sharp cry of alarm, and knelt down among the fragments. Diggs was before her. The fall had loosened a secret spring in the pedestal. Inside its hollow there lay a folded sheet of rice paper with a hand-painted diagram on it, and small vertical lines of Chinese characters.

"I think the sacred Hu Fwa has given up his secret," said Diggs. "Let's call a taxi and run down to Wallace—"

"No, no. I can read it myself," exclaimed Leonie, bending excitedly over the paper. After a moment she lifted her face. "Oh, this is too good to be true," she cried. "It tells how the treasures of the murdered Christians for hundreds of years past have been buried in the tombs under the temple. No wonder Doctor Yoy wanted the buried treasure to further the plans of the revolutionists."

"But how did it come in his possession?" asked Diggs quickly.

"Lao San was the only one who knew of the chest. He probably murdered her. Oh, if you only knew of the tragedies hidden in the gardens in old China. I can never thank you enough for helping me. If it hadn't been for you I would never have found it out. Just think what it means to me to be able to turn this treasure over, in my father's name, to the cause that he died for."

Diggs felt the last remnant of his New England caution swept away, as he looked at her radiant, upturned face.

"Can you guess what this means to me?" he asked, huskily. "God bless the little jade frog."

MAKE WAR ON INSECTS

Campaign to Teach Every Farmer and Keeper of Foods.

Reduction of Only 5 Per Cent of Present Losses Would Result in Saving Millions of Bushels of Important Crops.

(From the United States Department of Agriculture.)

In an effort to reduce the enormous annual loss of food caused by attacks of insects on growing crops, stored food supplies, and live stock the bureau of entomology of the United States department of agriculture, in co-operation with the extension services of the states, is to begin a vigorous campaign to teach insect fighting.

Covering the country as effectively as possible with emergency funds made available in the food production bill just enacted by congress the entomologists will deal with every pest of important crops. Should the campaign planned result in a reduction of only 5 per cent of present losses from insects an amount aggregating millions of bushels it is estimated would be saved. It is expected that an effective campaign would result in even a larger saving.

Specialists will give demonstrations to small groups of farmers, fruit growers and others in regions where their services are most needed. Wherever it can be done persons in the community where the demonstration is being conducted will be asked to assist in preparing spray mixtures, emulsions, poisoned baits, dips, washes and the like. These persons, so far as practicable, then will be requested to assist in the application of these and other measures in order that each community in which demonstrations are given will have one or more persons acquainted with methods of assembling and applying insecticides and in the use of other remedial measures.

Specialists in rice insects will visit rice fields. Men familiar with the insect pests of the orchard and vineyard will be sent to those states where fruit growing is an important industry. In the large trucking areas of the country and elsewhere specialists familiar with the insects of truck crops will be detailed. Men familiar with the insect pests of cereal and forage crops will work in states where these crops are of most importance, and will give special attention to such important pests as the Hessian fly, chinch bug and joint worms.

In case of serious insect outbreaks men will be available to concentrate effort in the infested territory, to prevent, if possible, further spread of the pest. It is planned to give attention also to demonstrating and disseminating information about methods for the prevention of insect losses to stored grains, flour and other products, in mills, warehouses and granaries, and for the reduction of losses to other stored food products.

The most convenient post-puller I ever used is this one, writes Lester Mayfield in Farmers Mail and Breeze. On a base 2 feet long, two 2 by 6 uprights, 28 inches long, are bolted. The lever is a 2 by 6, about 6½ feet long. Eighteen inches from one end, a hole is bored, and a bolt is passed through uprights and lever. Two strap irons are bolted to the outer end of the lever, as shown, with a hook on one side and a piece of chain on the other. Raise the lever, put the chain around the post and hook it, then bear down, and up comes your post.

PROCURE BEST MILK SUPPLY

Bacteria Which Enter With Dirt From Cow and Unclean Pails Are Cause of Most Trouble.

Milk sours and spoils because of the bacteria which enter it with dirt from the cow and from pails not thoroughly washed. Keeping these bacteria out of the milk and preventing their growth by keeping the milk cool, are easy and efficient means of producing the best of milk from the family cow provided she is free from disease.

REMOVAL OF SURPLUS HONEY

Select Warm Day and Be Careful Not to Smear Honey About Hive or on the Ground.

(By L. HASEMAN, University of Missouri College of Agriculture.)

To remove surplus honey select a warm day and work rapidly as possible so as to avoid exposing the honey to robber bees. Also be careful to avoid spilling or smearing honey about the hive or ground as it always encourages robbing, the most undesirable trait of bees. Above all, remember to remove only surplus honey and leave the brood chamber strictly alone.

LAKE WILL CONTEST IN SUPREME COURT

Son of Testator is Trying to Break Will on Grounds of Incompetency and Undue Influence—Contestant's Attorneys Call Many Witnesses.

Case No 2 was continued in the supreme court here Thursday afternoon This is a proceeding to determine the validity of the will of the late Vernon D. Lake who died in the Benedictine Sanitarium, this city, on March 17, 1917, from pneumonia. Emerson J Lake, son of the testator is contesting the will upon the grounds that the testator was mentally incompetent at the time the will was drawn and that he was undulv influenced Under the terms of the will the contestant was bequeathed the mortgage on a house on Fair street that the testator had purchased for the contestant Testator made bequests of $2,500 each to the two married daughters of the contestant, bequests of like amount to contestant's grandson, $2 500 each to the two sisters of testator, and the residue to a brother of the testator.

Witnesses for Contestant.

Emerson J. Lake was put on the stand, and in answer to the questions asked by Judge Van Etten, attorney for contestant, the following facts relative to Lake, the contestant were brought out Contestant is 49 years old, and is the only living son of the testator The youngest brother died 20 years ago, and the next youngest brother died 17 years ago For four years contestant drove a stage in Woodstock When he was 16 years old he enlisted in the navy and spent 3 years in naval service. He was a member of the New York police force from 1892 to 1912, at a salary of $1,400 a year. Made an application for retirement from the police force in 1912 Application was granted and contestant came to Kingston, where he has resided ever since Cross-examines Contestant.

Judge Jenkins cross-examined the contestant, and it was brought out during this cross-examination that contestant was receiving a pension of $58 33 a month from the New York police department.

Mr. Longyear's Testimony.

Paul Longyear was the next witness called Mr. Longyear conducted a restaurant at one time on North Front street, and the testator ate there at times Mr Longyear described some of the eccentric eating ideas of the testator According to Mr. Longyear the testator was unusually fond of pork chops and salt pork, and would come into the kitchen of the restaurant, take out the pork chops from the refrigerator and instruct Mr. Longyear just how to cook them.

That Egg Batter.

One time testator asked Longyear to take some eggs, make a batter of them and fry some salt pord in this batter.

Longyear said that he had known the testator for four or five years, and had worked for him, and that he had heard testator say on a number of occasions that "he would take care of Emerson," (the contestant).

Longyear saw testator after his illness, and said that testator had stated "that he felt shaky and he thought that something was wrong with his head"

Mrs. Allen Testifies.

Mrs Harriet C Allen the next witness called, boarded several years with testator when he conducted a hotel at Rhinebeck. She stated contestant and his wife had visited testator at his hotel in Rhinebeck According to Mrs Allen testator stated that he was preparing a house for Emerson (the contestant) and that he had persuaded Emerson to give up his position and have him and his wife come up and live with him (the testator)

Mr. Stake Next Witness.

Henry Stake, Jr., a member of the New York city police force, testified that he had known contestant for a number of years Stake said that he had met the testator various times at the home in New York city of the contestant and that testator stated that Emerson (the contestant) would have everything when he (the testator) died

Mrs. Stake Testifies.

Mrs Stake, wife of the last witness, was called, and gave about the same testimony that her husband did.

Wife of Contestant.

Mrs Emerson J Lake, wife of the contestant, was the next witness, and told of how she had kept house for the testator Mrs Lake described the alleged peculiar actions of the testator. He would come to the table with his hat on and set his false teeth down on the table He was very absent minded, would mislay various articles and think that some person had stolen these articles Nothing seemed to satisfy the testator He was finding fault the most of the time, especially with the cooking

Mrs Lake said that she did everything that she could to keep the house cozy and comfortable, and look after the personal comfort of the testator

Mrs Lake described in detail a stormy scene at the breakfast table one time

Many Witnesses Called.

The contestant's attorneys called a number of witnesses including relatives of the testator.

Most of the testimony of these witnesses was to the effect that the testator had often stated that his property would go, upon his death, to his son, Emerson.

Some of these witnesses testified relative to the alleged weak physical condition for some little time before his death

Some of the witnesses said that the testator had stated that he had made his will, leaving his son, Emerson, nothing but the mortgage on the house, but later he (the testator) changed his mind and said that he was going to make a will in favor of Emerson.

Dr. Follette Called.

Dr H A Follette, the next witness, stated that the testator was very weak after his illness in 1916, and that his nerves seemd to be all shattered The doctor said that testator had told him that he was going to provide for Emerson.

What War Does.

For those who go to war the victory is not always to the strong nor the race to the swift. One of the seemingly paradoxical things taught by the conflict between the states was that recruits who seemed to the ordinary observer to be too frail and small to stand the rigors of war almost uniformly developed into tough and reliable soldiers, often more so than their bulky and athletic brethren. The test of the battlefield has proved that many a man who had been timid and considered himself a coward was in reality braver than the swashbuckler who had sneered at him back home. Men who have been disgraceful failures in civil life have been converted in the fire of war into leaders of high ability.

Real value for your money in Hart Schaffner & Marx overcoats

YOU'D better buy your overcoat for quality: that's the true economy: and don't forget that the price has something to do with the quality. Good clothes cost more than poor ones.

We insure any overcoat you buy here; for the real value per dollar. We offer you a big variety to select from, in Hart Schaffner & Marx coats. We adopt a policy of smaller profits and quick sales.
